HUNDREDS WITNESS BIG TRADES DAY PARADE IN CITY

AIRPLANE STUNTS THRILL THE CROWD AND MANY ARE HERE TO TRADE.

The trades day that was put on here Monday with the assistance of D. D. McLane of Temple proved the rural and city people can work together if they will, according to local leaders.

The trades day here was the biggest in the history of the trades day movement, it was declared. Hundreds of people spent the day here and more than 100 floats were in the big street parade.

Mr. McLane, who is promoting these trades day events throughout central Texas, said that the parade was the biggest and best of all and declared "I have found the people, even to the smallest fellow, all bending every effort to make the day a success. In Cameron you only had to hint that you wanted something done and someone willingly offered his services."

The 100 floats, which were in addition to the regular business advertising floats, were alternately rural and then city. Each was decorated in gala fashion with May flowers in great profusion.

"Pilot" McLane, Pilot Mauldin and Lieut. Kindred flew low over the parade while it was in procession. The guinea stunts were very interesting. Some of the guineas lighted on the courthouse lawn.

As McLane left he said: "Cameron people, one and all, are for the up-building of Cameron."

He especially complimented Miss Delphia Scott and Mr. Sprott on their success in handling the crowds and obtaining the co-operation of everyone. Among the visitors at the trades day were J. Nabers of near Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Woodson of Santa Anna, who are visiting in son, 718 South Eleventh street.

Conspicuous in the parade were Temple in the home of D. M. Robinson several classes from the grammar school and the Seniors from the high school as well as Juniors and host of others. Superintendent L. H. Kidd and others of the faculty were in the parade.

The fifth grade had the largest representation with more display of fun and frolic, a number having worn funny costumes and with comic make up.

After the parade the Municipal band which led the procession gave a concert on the lawn of the courthouse.

While comparatively few people were in from the rural districts, the people of the city responded liberally and the day was counted a success.

Yoe Memorial Day Observed; Hundreds Praise Benefactors

In appreciation of the magnificent gift of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Yoe to the City of Cameron, the school board and citizens of the town, have set aside May 10, as Yoe Memorial Day.

This marks the anniversary of the birth of Charles H. Yoe, and is a fitting time for the school children and for the citizens in general to meet and pay tribute to the memory of this couple, whose generosity made possible the beautiful Yoe High School. This day will be observed each year so that the coming generations may not forget Cameron's benefactors.

At 10 o'clock this morning, the business houses closed their doors for one hour and citizens and school children met in the school auditorium where appropriate exercises were held in honor of the day.

The main floor of the auditorium was reserved for the students of Yoe High school and of the grammar grades, the galleries being filled with patrons.

Hon. T. S. Henderson, Rev. H. R. McFadyen and Dr. Chas. G. Johnson of Baylor University, were seated on the stage with members of the faculty and the school board, and representatives of the student body.

The program opened with a selection by the Yoe High school orchestra. Rev. H. R. McFadyen gave the invocation, after which, Mr. Henderson introduced Leonard Mewhinney, a representative of the 22-23 class who expressed the appreciation felt by the students of the high school for their beautiful school home and urged that as they had received this gift from the hands of their benefactors, so each student should strive to preserve its beauty and leave it unmarred for his successors.

Kathryn Atkinson, represented the seventh grade, the class which will enter high school next year and promised for her class, loyalty to the trust they should receive.

Misses Lois Camp and Kathryn Agee gave piano numbers which were executed with grace and skill.

The principal address of the hour was made by Dr. Johnson, head of the Department of Public Speaking, Baylor University, who chose for his subject "Enduring Memorials." Dr. Johnson's talk was suited to the occasion, filled with practical advice well seasoned with humor.

The exercises in the school building concluded with "America" led by Mrs. J. L. Clinton.

The students of both schools then formed in line and marched to Oak Hill Cemetery where the graves of Mr. and Mrs. Yoe were decorated with flowers. The four classes of high school and the Carrie Yoe Club carried beautiful floral designs and each student placed his own offering on the graves.

Miss Maurine House of Southwest-ern University spent the week end at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. House, returning to Georgetown Monday, accompanied by her mother who was a guest in the Woman's building over night.

Business houses closed their doors promptly at the appointed hour and a large concourse of men, women and children gathered in the school auditorium where a well arranged program was carried out.

Dr. Charles D. Johnson, head of the Department of Public Discourse, Baylor University, gave the principal address of the occasion, after which, the citizens marched with the school children to Oak Hill Cemetery to place flowers on the graves of their benefactors.

DISCUS CHAMPION MAY COMPETE IN CHICAGO FOR OLYMPIC IN 1924.

JACK TAYLOR

Having won at the state intercollegiate meet in Austin in the discus throw with a distance of 126 feet, Jack Taylor, Yoe High School athlete, after he has competed at Dallas on May 19 may go to Chicago on Aug. 5 for the national meet. If he is among the successful four at Chicago, which many here believe he will be, he will get a free trip to Paris for the Olympic in 1924.

Such in brief is the immediate prospect of one of the greatest athletes Cameron schools have ever produced. Jack is the son of Dr. and Mrs. G. B. Taylor of Cameron, is 26 years old. His weight is 190 pounds and in altitude he towers to the height of six feet and four inches. Among his athletic associates he is affectionally called "Jack the Giant."

At the recent Baylor College meet he lowered all previous intercollegiate records, throwing the discus 118 feet. At Calvert when the district meet was 122 feet. At Austin when the state held he won by throwing the discus record by throwing 126 feet. The state record is 139 feet. His record is equal to the great stars of the world and it is believed he will win at Dallas and Chicago.

In a recent practice he threw the discus 143 feet and 10 inches. Coach Perkins of Yoe High believes the state record of 139 feet an accidental record and believes Jack is the best discus throw man in organized athletics today.

If successful at Chicago, Jack will go to Paris, and is allowed to take his trainer with him. The father, Dr. Taylor, declares he will be an applicant for the job as trainer when his famous son takes to the Corsican empire for world honors.

ARRESTS CLEAR UP BURNING BUSINESS BLOCK THORNDALE

STORES AND BANK BURNED TO COVER UP BURGLARY IS CLAIM.

Burglary which led to the burning of a business block in the city of Thorndale two months ago with a loss of more than $200,000 about which has lingered the suspicion of arson has been cleared up by the sheriff's department here as a result of two arrests this week. Two are being held one a young white man and the other a young negro.

According to information obtained here the young white man is said to have made a confession in which he acknowledges robbing the Fisher & Sons Dry Goods store in Thorndale and implicates another young white man, not under arrest, and the negro.

The arrests were made this week and the confessions are said to have been obtained after the men were placed in the county jail. This is one of a series of robberies of stores in Thorndale during the past year.

At the time of the fire which burned the Fisher dry goods store, Thorndale State Bank, Masonic Lodge and other buildings, no suspicion was held that arson had been committed. Quite by chance a tip was given and investigations began which resulted in the bringing to light the motive of the fire. It is said the young man declared his reason for setting fire to the store was to cover up evidence of the burglary.

Two other young men are being held here in connection with the robbery of the store of the Thorndale Dry Goods Company several weeks ago and it is said confessions have been made in this case. The names of all are withheld. The grand jury is in session here this week and it is understood that the matter is now before that body for action.

Last week Sheriff Drue S. Rogers was called to Thorndale to investigate the robbery of the Thorndale Mercantile Company store in which about $1,000 in goods were taken. Arrests have been made in the case also and the department feels it has broken up a band of local burglars that for more than two years has operated in the Thorndale neighborhood.

Mrs. Eleanor Sparks, District Organizer of "The Degree of Honor Protective Association" left for her home in Temple Wednesday, will return to Cameron Sunday.

FEW VIOLATIONS OF LAW THOUGHT EXISTING IN COUNTY

GRAND JURY IMPANELED GIVEN
INSTRUCTIONS BY JUDGE
WATSON.

That lawlessness in Milam county is on the wane is evidenced by the address of Judge Watson to the grand jury impaneled in the District Court here Monday afternoon.

In instructing the jury Judge Watson made no reference to any particular violation of the law and no special emphasis was given the jury to investigate any particular condition. The instructions were along general lines.

Reference as provided for instructing grand juries was made to election law violations, freight rate regulations and a few other general heads of formal instruction. Judge Watson explained that it had been necessary in recent years to pass a law regulating freight matters as large shippers had in time gotten rebates on freight and the jury was instructed to make this a part of their general investigation.

So far as is known there has been no violation of the election laws in Milam county.

The only known violations are the liquor law violations, and the offense of swindling originating in the passing of bad checks, reference to which was made in the address to the jury.

Judd G. Davis, Cameron hardware dealer was made foreman of the Grand Jury by appointment of Judge Watson.

After the charge to the jury the men filed to the grand jury room led by Sheriff Drue S. Rogers, there to begin their work of investigating law violations in the county.

Great crowds are attending the Baptist revival meeting here. The meeting will continue throughout the week, closing Sunday, making a total of 14 days. Rev. Lee M. White, pastor of the First Baptist church in Kinston, N. C., is conducting the services. He is a brother of Rev. Russell C. White, pastor of the Cameron church.

ROBERT E. LEE IS NAME NEW HOTEL

BOERNE GIRL WINS HUNDRED DOLLARS IN NAME CONTEST
FOR NEW HOTEL.

In announcing the winning name for the splendid new hotel soon to be opened in San Antonio, Percy Tyrrell, well known throughout the United States as a hotel man and prominent in Texas as Manager of the Gunter Hotel has made a very happy choice.

Robert E. Lee as a young officer in the United States Army, in the early days before the Civil War, was identified with Texas History to a much greater extent than most people realize.

Commemorating his name by bestowing it on the new hotel will awaken an interest in this early history, will call forth explanations and historical statements which every Texan should know.

The name Robert E. Lee reawakens no sectional prejudice, nor does it bring to mind particularly any division of the North and the South for General Robert E. Lee was generally beloved and today his name is revered throughout the nation.

The winning name was submitted by Miss Linda Condon of Boerne, Texas and the award sent her just a few days after a decision was reached.

Thousands of names were submitted including Bluebonnet, The Texas, Trails End, many of them novel, many of them conventional. The interest created throughout the State and even in other sections of the country was very gratifying to the management and duly appreciated.

The new Robert E. Lee Hotel is a strictly modern, ten story building with two hundred rooms. Fire proof and provided with every possible convenience, this hotel will add greatly to San Antonio's ability to take care of transient guests.

A commercial hotel in every sense of the word, the Robert E. Lee will not provide sample rooms but will cater to that class of commercial travelers who does not need hotel space in which to display his wares.

Jack White, popular and efficient as assistant manager of the Gunter Hotel will become manager of the Robert E. Lee.

The management of the Robert E. Lee is planning an opening sometime around June first which will be far and away the most ambitious event ever staged in Texas upon the opening of a Hotel. It is expected that reservation for the opening day will fill the new Robert E. Lee long before its doors are ready to open, but arrangements will be made to care for every guest who applies for accommodation on the opening day.

The management of the Robert E. Lee will particularly welcome visiting Texans to this new Hotel and do their utmost to make their stay in San Antonio pleasant.

Both the City and the State are to be congratulated on the completion of the Robert E. Lee as it marks a snip of progress and paves the way for that growth of State and City which through the years will reach proportions nothing many another section of the country behind.

IRENE STOLOFSKY, VIOLINIST AT CHAUTAUQUA.

Seldom indeed does distinguished mention by greatest critics fall to the lot of so young an artist as Irene Stofosky.

Miss Stofosky was born in America, Chicago, of Polish parents. Six years ago she played her first trial selection for Redpath. She was immediately engaged and has been with the Redpath-Bureau ever since.

Everywhere she has appeared, in great cities, small towns, Chautauqua tents or magnificent halls, her success has been immediate and great. Literally reams of press comment speak unqualified praise of the little violinist.

We will quote from one: "She is a tiny, pocket edition, is Irene Stofosky, a marvel violinist. She has tons of personality and about the loveliest brown eyes, so soft and appealing, that you ever saw."

"Despite this however, her playing is much like a man's in its strength and virility. Yet there is also a delicacy which only a woman's touch can give."

Miss Stofosky has endeared herself to her audiences by playing a number of sweet, appealing old songs which everyone loves and so few of the great artists take time to play.

As supporting artists Miss Stofosky will have Mr. George B. Imbrie baritone and Miss Magdalene Massman, pianist.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring color, lustre and youthfulness to hair when faded, streaked or gray

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

PET BROWN, NOTED WRESTLER KILLED IN CISCO SUNDAY

CONSTABLE HELD IN CONNECTION WITH KILLING OF TEXAS IDOL.

Cisco, Texas, May 6.—Elmer D. (Pet) Brown, middle-weight champion wrestler of the world, was shot and instantly killed last night about 11 o'clock at his construction camp a short distance east of Cisco on the Eastland road, in an altercation with Constable Louis J. Starkey.

The body was brought to Cisco and placed in charge of a local undertaking establishment pending funeral arrangements.

Constable Starkey, charged with the death of Brown, had an examining trial before Justice S. J. Bay at Eastland at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon and was admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000 at the recommendation of County Attorney W. J. Barnes.

People of Cisco are considerably dissatisfied with the granting of bond and mass meeting was called for Sunday evening to petition the district judge to inpanel a special grand jury to investigate the case.

Brown had lived in Cisco the past year, doing paving work on Cisco's streets, and the public roads of the county. He employed a large number of negroes, who were camped about half a mile from the city. At the time of his death he was finishing the last lap of the Bankhead highway from Eastland to Cisco.

About a year ago Brown was operated upon for appendicitis and since that time had not engaged in wrestling. "Pet" Brown, as he was well known throughout the State, was reared in Taylor, Texas, where he first came into fame as a wrestler, and it was while living in that city that he met some of the most famous wrestlers in the world. It is said of him that he never was thrown in a match. It was while in Taylor that he won the diamond studded middle-weight championship belt, a trophy which is now in the vault of the city hall of Cisco, and which was his personal property.

Besides a wife, who is prostrated at her home in this city, Brown is survived by his father, who resides at Sanginaw, and two brothers, Bill Brown of Elgin, and Frank Brown of Lubbock. Relatives of the deceased are expected to arrive today.

After the shooting, it is alleged that Starkey left the scene immediately and was taken to Eastland by Deputy Sheriff B. P. Poe, who turned him over to Sheriff Dug Barton.

Starkey assumed the duties of constable on the first of the year, having been elected last year. Circumstances of the killing, as related directly following the shooting, are substantially as follows:

A negro employed by Brown stuck a nail in his foot while working on a storm sewer on Sixth Street. Brown and wife, accompanied by W. B. Statham and wife took the negro to a local hospital where the wound was dressed. Brown and wife then took the negro to the construction camp east of the city, where he was made comfortable and left for the night in a tent.

After the errand of money had been completed, Brown is said to have walked into an adjoining tent, where he discovered Constable Starkey, who had rounded up a group of negro craps shooters and was preparing to bring them to the city. Brown, according to the report asked Starkey to release the negroes, telling him that he (Brown) would stand good for their fines. An argument followed, which culminated when Brown fell to the earth with a bullet through his heart. He died almost instantly. It is stated that Brown was unarmed.

THE DEADLY TURRET.

The "Turret" incident between this country and England is of only transient importance even though the British dreadnaught, through the superior elevations of her guns, can go into action at a greater range than the American battleships. Long before this argument can be brought to proof, the newest battleship afloat, we hope and trust, will have served the final purpose of a target for long range guns.

But what is really surprising is the lack of reliable information in the navy department. Since the English have not elevated the turrets of their big guns since the peace conference at Washington, it must be that they have held this deadly advantage for over a year while our naval experts haven't known a thing about it.

We have always considered that it was the part of modern statecraft to keep spies or observers in every foreign shipyard and arsenal. We imagined that buried in the archives of the state department at Washington were blue prints and plans of every foreign fortress, of every forthcoming machine, and of every forthcoming battleship. We supposed that agents from every friendly enemy country were performing the same gracious service in our own forts and laboratories and thought with quickening fancy of the plots and counterplots between our secret service and the foreign agents of Albion.

It looks now as though most of this was bunk and that we don't know what is going on in other countries it might be a wise move if the senate were to appoint a committee to look into this matter and establish some method of official communication between this country and the twenty-seven member nations of the league in regard to open arrangements on the arrival at concerning the heights of gun turrets.

8,000 POISONED WELLS.

In a resolution passed at the D. A. R. convention at Washington a few days ago, the teaching of radicalism in the schools and colleges of the United States was condemned. It was stated that not less than 8,000 of the teaching staff of the country hold doctrines at distinct variance with American principles and traditions and that this state of affairs was producing deplorable results.

While not attempting to disprove or verify the number of the disaffected, it is quite apparent that this condition does exist and constitutes a serious if minor menace, inasmuch as the youth of the country is bound to reflect a part of this mental attitude.

Political and religious heresy is easily enough acquired through erotism, passion and prejudice without spending fifteen to twenty millions a year of the public's money to create it in the class rooms.

And while we may admit, for the sake of argument, that radical and atheistical tendencies are no more common among teachers than among other classes or professions, it is nevertheless a fact that the science of pedagogy is peculiarly liable to unorthodoxy, because of the natural tendency of the scholar to accept only demonstrable premises. His business is to find error and reject it. For religious phenomena he is inclined to offer material explanation and simple faith is a problem in psychology.

In politics he is even more academic. Sir Thomas Moore's Utopia portrays a perfect system of society while the Marxian plan of government is unexcelled in theory. When these theories fail to work out in practice, the average citizen, unaware that a splendid abstract principle has gone to smash, at once dismisses it from his mind, but the scholar is inclined to dig in the ruins in search of the error.

The American system of government has been worked out with infinite labor and pains. It is a mixture of theory and practice in which much of the former has been sacrificed in order to secure a practical application of vital democratic principles.

Wholesome progress in politics can only be made by cautious experiment. The gradual correction of abuses and still more gradual substitution of new principles for old is the only safe road in political development and this work may be much better left to the experienced statesman than to the college professor.

A prominent educational journal published some interesting conclusions regarding the difference in attitude in regard to radicalism between those teachers who served in the army or navy during the great war and those who remained in the classrooms. It is interesting to note that the former are almost wholly without radical tendencies and have become a highly conservative force in public instruction. While it is true that the work of education could not be halted during the period of the war, the public is indebted to those who did serve and returned Americans first and teachers afterward.

A FOOLISH FOLLY.

"But," said the linotype operator, after reading the title of this article, "that's a foolish thing in itself. All follies are foolish so why specify?" Doubtless he is right because we never heard of a wise folly, but at the same time we can think of no more fitting term in describing the marathon dancing craze which is now sweeping certain sections of the country.

Old timers still remember the six day walking matches that disfigured the sporting annals of New York in the late years of the last century as well as the long endurance bicycle contests. The cases are perhaps, similar except that an endurance contest of the dancing floor gives women a marked and peculiar advantage over the male sex. We do not attach much importance to the suggestion that male dancers are too sensible to appear in such exhibitions. There are certain types of men who will do anything for notoriety from shooting Niagara in a barrel to fasting forty days and it is quite probable that the final dancing record will be held by a man.

People who do these things are animated by a very natural desire to excel in some particular line and if their ability and effort cannot carry them further than a public dancing floor, they are to be pitied rather than censured.

The spectacle of a woman reeling around a ball room with her eyes glassy, her head rolling and her hairpins missing after sixty or seventy hours of continuous performance, would not be edifying to some of us, but then, neither would a dog fight or a ferret match. There are many foolish follies. Who shall say which is the most foolish?

AN OLD WORD BUT A GOOD ONE.

We are impressed with the exceedingly neat and nifty way in which a certain national organization of ladies got away from the term husband and wife with its old association of implied inferiority, by the use of the word "spouse."

The beauty of this word is that it applies equally well to either party of the contract and contains not the slightest implication of degree or excellence. In a resolution which says that one spouse shall have equal and absolute right with the other spouse in commonly owned property and that both spouses shall stand equal in the investment of those rights which neither spouse may abridge or exceed, we clearly perceive that so far as verbiage is concerned, women now have their status so inextricably mixed with the male that differentiation is no longer possible.

TAXATION.

In the last and the present session of the Legislature several hundred bills have been introduced levying taxes of various kinds. While the Government must have revenue to conduct the State, there is such a thing as going too far—as killing the goose that lays the golden eggs. Excessive taxation will necessarily have the result of decreasing the revenue, instead of increasing it. If all the proposed tax bills become laws, business will be throttled and industry brought to a standstill. The result will be that there will be less and less revenue with which to conduct the State's business.

The remedy is not so much in decreasing appropriations as in providing rational and workable methods of raising the needed amount of revenue to carry on the necessary functions of our government, and dropping some things which are unnecessary. As to the first remedy, we suggest that our entire taxation system needs a thorough overhauling, so that property may be properly and fully rendered, taxes levied in proportion to the ability to pay and collected speedily with the minimum expense to both the taxpayers and the State. As to the second remedy, the governor has pointed the way in his recommendation to the Legislature that many of our departments and boards be consolidated and some of them abolished.

The whole question of taxation is under discussion throughout the country, and we have observed that whenever a question is taken up and discussed by our people, proper solution is inevitably reached; but we seriously fear that great harm may be done temporarily during the process of arriving at a solution. Above all things we must remember that the burden must not be laid too heavily on any one industry or business. At present the State of Texas is entering upon an era of expansion in manufacturing lines. At present our manufacturing corporations pay ad valorem and franchise taxes, and it is proposed to add gross receipts and intangible assets taxes to that burden. We ask, as an open question: Would not the addition of these new taxes retard our development in manufacturing, instead of raising additional revenue for our Government?

MOTHER'S DAY.

In honor of your mother dear, Tho' dead or living, far or near, Today we wear a pure white flower For it is set as mother's day, When loyal hearts true homage pay To Mother's love—that wondrous power.

The far from home we passel away Let's not forget that we should pay That debt of gratitude we owe; To send some kindly message there To show that we still fondly care For mother as it years ago.

For none has ever cared for you As loyal heart as warm and true As mother cared for you a child; Tho' dead or living she may be Her kindly love and purity

Blooms like a rose, pure, undefiled. So may this day and kindly deed Both serve to fill a long felt need To show to mothers their true sphere;

The honor and glory too That all mankind feel they are due As loyal, loving mothers here.

FORTY-TWO CLUB.

The stately home of Mrs. J. C. Tucker presented a beautiful scene last Thursday afternoon when she entertained the Fort-Two Club.

This was a butterfly party. Lovely spring flowers lent their delicate shades to provide the motif, arrangements of the pretty flowers clustered at vantage points about the rooms in vases and baskets gave an attractive setting. Gorgeous butterflies were in evidence everywhere. Table covers, tally pads, score cards and mint holders favored the butterfly decoration. A large yellow butterfly centered each table, and small receptacles held yellow mints that were eaten during the games.

At the conclusion of the many interesting games those making high score cut for the beautiful table favors, which were large nut cups filled with candy. The hostess, assisted by Mesdames S. A. Cottle and Alex Triggs, served on beautifully laid trays of yellow, butterfly salad, pressed meat sandwiches, crackers, orange ice with dainty butterfly's perched on rim of glass, and angel food cake.

Out of town guests were Mrs. Stone of Michigan, and Mrs. Ernest Green of Rosebud.

Committees in charge of subscription lists were instructed to begin work here Monday to raise funds for the support of a base ball club. It is planned to raise about $3,000 to take care of the cost of remodeling the park and to run the pay roll for the first 30 days. After that it is estimated that the club will be self sustaining. A. N. Green, local banker and A. H. Baskin, local merchant, have given a park to the city to be known as an athlete field. This field will accommodate the schools and the regular ball club. The Comets have played two seasons for the city and last year won the Central Texas Championship.

Wm. R. Rogers will manage the team again this year and a number of players have been signed for the club this year. It is believed a better club will be had this year than in 1922. The local schedule provides that three of the Texas league clubs, Galveston, Beaumont and San Antonio will play a game each during the season, the first to be played here on an early June date. The Comets will play the league clubs.

American Red Cross Emergency Aid To Syria Refugees Helps Thousands Fight Disease And Hunger In Greece

American Red Cross emergency aid in Greece has pictorial expression above, the picture showing Red Cross workers just about to begin distribution of food to the unfortunate Syrians. Ever since the burning of Smyrna, the American Red Cross, from its emergency funds, has been extending generous aid to the refugee victims, providing them with food and clothing, organizing and maintaining hospitals, ambulances, medicines, medical supplies, and supporting other relief measures at a cost to American charity of approximately $2,600,000. In doing so it has won the gratitude of the Greek Government and the refugees themselves. It has undoubtedly alleviated much suffering and, in waging its fight against epidemic diseases, has given to the people of Eastern Europe a new respect for American principles of sanitation. But Greece, which has a population about equal to that of the City of New York and an area comparable to that of the State of Ohio, has not yet demonstrated her ability to absorb the million immigrants unexpectedly thrust upon her. They are rapidly becoming a permanent problem. Therefore, the American Red Cross has given ample notice of its intention to discontinue its emergency relief program on June 30. In the meantime the feeding is to continue where it is needed, the sanitary measures are to be carried out and the refugees aided, but on the distinct understanding that America does not intend to adopt them permanently and that it is up to their own governments to make provision for them thereafter.

Each voter at said election who desires to vote for such increase shall have written or printed on his ballot, "For Increase of School Tax," and each voter desiring to vote against such increase shall have written or printed on his ballot "Against Increase of School Tax." The polls at said election shall be opened at 8 o'clock a. m. and closed at 7 o'clock p. m. Said election was ordered by the County Judge of this county by order made on the 30th day of April, 1923, and this notice is given in pursuance of that order. Dated the 30th day of April, 1923. ## CHRISTIAN CHURCH UNIVERSITY GROWS

T. C. U. TO REACH ALL GOALS BY COMMENCEMENT DAY.

Fort Worth, Texas, May 7.—with in sight of the double goal of clearing all indebtedness and raising the endowment of Texas Christian University to $500,000, the general committee will redouble its efforts to finish the task at once. It is the aim of the committee to have the campaign out of the way before June 1 when the Fiftieth Anniversary of the founding of the school will be celebrated with a big home-coming.

M. Boyd Keith, manager of the Fowler Homes in Dallas has been enlisted to take the field with President E. M. Waits and Sam J. McFarland, general chairman, to complete the personal work that will be necessary. Leaders of the Brotherhood have been called on to rally to the Purple and White at once.

About $50,000 will be needed to finish the goals, which indicates what a great interest has been found among the people of the church, for only a few months ago the amount to be raised was approximately a half million dollars. Of that amount, $300,000 was needed to clear the great University plant of all obligations, and the rest was needed to raise the endowment to $500,000. Gifts have been made by individuals, by churches and by organizations that have the development of the University at heart. Fort Worth has rallied nobly, having raised her quota within a few days.

Five great goals were set early in the year for Texas Christian University to reach by June 1, and President Waits announced those as, The raising of the endowment, the clearing of the debts, the getting membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and in the Southwestern Athletic Association, the building of a boulevard from the heart of the city through the beautiful campus and university, and the getting of additional endowment from the General Education Board in New York. A short time after that, T. C. U. was made a member of the Southern Association of Colleges by the committee meeting in New Orleans, thus taking equal rank with the South's fifty best universities. On that same day, and almost within the same hour, the Southwestern Athletic Association gave the school a hearty welcome to its fold.

The boulevard is under construction, and will be used by the great Jubilee gathering as a highway to the University during the celebration and commencement exercises; as has been indicated, the endowment and debt troubles are being diminished daily,—while the fifth goal depends for its outcome on the raising of these funds just mentioned.

Dean Colby D. Hall says that the present school year has been the most successful in the history of T. C. U. from the standpoint of enrollment and of general scholarship attainments. Students from every section of the State have been in attendance, showing the growing interest in even the most remote counties. Fort Worth people have sent a much larger group than in any year previous. With the added endowment, T. C. U. will be able to develop other departments, appealing to other groups of Texas young people who go to college to fit themselves for higher tasks.

Texas Christian University has the best plant of any of the thirty colleges and universities of the Christian church brotherhood, and is maintaining a standard of scholarship equal to any school. Ten thousand young people have attended her classes, and many have taken places of great responsibility in American affairs, as well as in Texas public life. The Jubilee program, which will end with a great service all day June 5, will be attended by several hundred exstudents, as well as by the hundreds who will be in the city to attend the Texas Christian Church Convention. The program will start June 1, with sessions of the church men, and closing with the great Home-Coming Day, when the Memorial Arch to the University's World War Veterans will be unveiled; Commencement exercises; a great historical pageant; and a big barbecue.

Career of Captain Hartley, Who Will Command Mighty Leviathan, Inspiration To American Boys

Captain Herbert Hartley, Commander of S. S. Leviathan

New York. Behind the appointment just announced of Captain Herbert Hartley to take command of the great steamship Leviathan, shortly to enter the Trans-Atlantic service under the flag of the United States Line, lies a story that should serve as an inspiration to all American boys.

In attaining to the command of the mighty Leviathan Captain Hartley has realized his dream of a career. As a striping yearning for a career, he dreamed of the day when he might be in command of a vessel but in his wildest flights of fancy he did not picture himself in command of the wonder ship of the seven seas—the greatest ship under the American flag.

Born in Oswego Falls, N. Y., in 1875 Captain Hartley early developed a love of the sea, largely influenced through his reading of books devoted to ships and the stirring adventures of men who followed nautical careers. After finishing his preliminary schooling, the young man determined to start off on a sea-faring career. This was not altogether agreeable to his father and when he determined to become a cadet on the frigate Saratoga, loaned by the United States Navy Department to the State of Pennsylvania as a training ship, he expended five dollars of his meagre savings to induce an father and give the necessary permission for his enlistment. During his two years' service aboard the Saratoga, young Hartley visited many of the world's most interesting ports and was taught seamanship by two young officers then rating as ensigns, but who later came into prominence during the world war as high officers. These two men were Admiral William S. Sims and Captain William H. Fletcher.

Following his graduation with high honors at the age of twenty, young Hartley entered the service of the American Line as a cadet—this was in 1895—and he continued steadily with that line until his recent appointment to the command of the Leviathan. During his service as an apprentice, young Hartley was a member of the crews of the St. Paul, St. Louis, Philadelphia, New York and Kronland.

The greater part of Captain Hartley's career was spent aboard the St. Louis. In this connection it might be pointed out that Captain Hartley's sea service is unique in the annals of American Merchant Marine history in that he was with the vessel from the time of her launching until he attained to the command.

During the World War, the St. Louis, renamed the Louisville, was active in transport service. As commander of the Louisville, which was the first of the American merchant ships to dare the German submarine menace and which made a glorious record of transporting troops to and from the battlefields of Flanders, Captain Hartley earned for himself many honors, including the navy cross for exceptional devotion to duty and bravery. Following the war Captain Hartley commanded various vessels flying the American flag and when the United States Shipping Board took up the question of a commander for the great Leviathan, Captain Hartley easily loomed up as a dominating figure. When the word was brought to Captain Hartley that he had been chosen commander of the Leviathan, he was silent for a time, and then remarked to a group of friends: "This will make Emily happy." Emily, the guiding spirit of Captain Hartley's life, is his fourteen-year-old and motherless daughter.

When Captain Hartley was recently asked as to whether or not he had a hobby, he replied that he had two: one his daughter Emily and the other, books. This statement succinctly sums up the personality of the Leviathan commander. It is a personality that will endear him to the thousands of travelers who will this summer cross the Atlantic on the greatest steamship under the American flag.

HELD ON CHARGE MAIL ROBBERY

THEFT OF PARCEL POST PACKAGE LEADS TO ARREST TUESDAY.

Ed. Kohutek, young farmer of near Buckholts, was brought to Cameron Wednesday morning by Deputy Sheriff Will Little and placed in jail on a charge of robbing a mail box. Early Wednesday office deputy H. H. Hartsfield wired the federal authorities in Waco to come and get the man.

Mrs. Albert Podanny assisted the deputy in making the arrest when she furnished a description of goods which had been ordered by her and which were found in the home of Kohutek having been taken from a parcel post package addressed to Mrs. Podanny.

Early Wednesday morning a call came from Rodney Anderson at Clarkson asking the sheriff to send a deputy with a warrant to make a search in connection with the robbery of his store Tuesday night. No arrests have been made in this case but clues furnished officers with confidence that the robbery will be cleared up.

Putting Your Town On The Map.

There are two ways of putting a town on the map. The man who prints a map upon a piece of paper puts a dot—a speck—with the name of your town attached to mark the location of your town. This is put there not because of you; but in spite of you. This method is all right for the study of geography; but it doesn't cut much ice in the material welfare of your town.

There is another way, though, of putting your town on the map, really, honest-to-goodness putting it there so that everybody knows you ARE there. It's no one man's job either, nor can any one individual accomplish this task. This is how it's done: when the citizenship of any town hide their hammer and forget to knock; when they discover the splendid habit of boosting their town and its best interests; when they are willing to lay aside in a large measure their own personal interest, and pull and work for the public good; when they stand FOR progress and not in the way of progress; when they tell others whom they meet about the BEST town of them all—their own; they will wake up to find their town sure enough on the map, the map that counts in the world's affairs.

The process of putting your town in its rightful place may seem a slow and a tedious one; the sacrifice you may be called upon to make may seem a bit heavy sometime; you may think you are doing more than your share; but don't worry; don't get weary in the game; push right ahead strengthened by the thought you are doing the right thing, and then when victory really comes, which it surely will, the consciousness that comes to you of duty done will then repay you well for every effort made, for every sacrifice endured, and YOUR town will most certainly be on the map, to remain there a fitting monument to your efforts and to your sacrifice.

Believe in your town; work for your town; boost. If you can't say something good for your town, then at least say nothing. Hide your hammer and buy a horn.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR LATE MRS. YOE PLANNED THURSDAY

COMMERCIAL CLUB CO-OPERATES WITH SCHOOL BOARD IN ARRANGEMENTS.

Thursday May 10, 1923, is the anniversary of the death of Mrs. Caroline Yoe who gave to the city of Cameron the $200,000 high school building.

Commemoration exercises will be held in the auditorium of the Yoe High School between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock.

It is also planned that the business houses in the city shall close during these hours and everybody attend the ceremonies.

The school board has asked the co-operation of the Commercial Club in arranging this program, and a committee of three has been appointed to make these arrangements in conjunction with the board.

Only one other service has been held and that a short time before the death of Mrs. Yoe. Shortly after her death it was decided to have an annual memorial day and at that time the schools dismissed and the city joined in placing flowers on her grave in Oak Hill Cemetery where she rests beside her husband.

Before the death of the late C. H. Yoe both had planned to give to the city of Cameron this magnificent building. His death a few years later forestalled the possibility of his seeing the fruits of the Yoe estate philanthropy but his widow the late Mrs. Caroline Yoe carried out the plans.

The city owes much to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Yoe and it is to honor them and their service to Cameron that the forthcoming memorial exercises will be held.

The citizens have undertaken to raise money and have about completed the amount to place bronze busts at the building of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Yoe. Only about $500 remains to be raised for this work. The busts are being made by Mr. Copini of Chicago, formerly a sculptor in San Antonio.

"POSTED MESSENGERS TO DELIVER GREETINGS."

Messengers assigned to the delivery of the flood of Mothers' Day telegrams Sunday will be furnished with flowers by the company, according to Mrs. Fisher, Manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company. "The carnation will lend a personal touch to the greeting conveyed by the boy," Mrs. Fisher said. The Mothers' Day business, as shown by last year's file, has grown to such proportions as to justify a special blank, such a blank has therefore been prepared this year and distribution is now being made. In addition to the blank the Western Union has also issued a leaflet entitled, "Mothers' Day Greetings," which contains many appropriate Messages for the occasion.

The Sunday closing law may be enforced in Cameron if plans now under way by the ladies of the Methodist church are successful. Efforts to create public sentiment for the observance of the Sunday laws were made this week when the ladies circulated a petition to get soda fountains, drug stores and filling stations to close their places of business.

PRESBYTERIAN MEN ORGANIZE LAYMEN CLUB IN CAMERON

CHURCH ORGANIZED HERE IN 1882 WITH MEMBERSHIP
OF 14.

Tuesday evening at 7:30 the laymen of the Presbyterian church met for a social hour and for the better planning of the work of their Association in the local church. It was a very enjoyable affair and will lead to enlarged usefulness on the part of the men of the church. Judge Gillis was Toast Master for the evening, and before the banquet was served called on John B. McLane, one of the charter members of the church to tell the men of the organization and the early efforts of the church. The church was organized in the Methodist church in 1882 and there are still living eight of the fourteen charter members.

The ladies of Circle one, served the banquet and if there was any criticism to be made it was that the ladies greatly overestimated the capacity of what is said to be the main travelled high way to our hearts. The menu was as follows:

Baked chicken and dressing
Rice and gravy
Creamed potatoes in patty shells
Potato salad Lettuce
Sandwiches Pickles Jelly
Ice cream

Brick-ice cream Cake
Forty-five men were served. Paul Webb in facetious and happy fashion voiced the sentiment that few were competent to express in thanking the ladies for their labors in behalf of "the Lords of Creation." There were some fine jokes cracked and in the number of good talks made many and well chosen things were said to help a man. The speech of the evening was made by Judge Camp of Rockdale, an elder of the First Presbyterian church of that city. We have our doubts as to whether he takes all the strong medicine himself that he brought for us but it is doing us good.

F. E. Jackson was elected chairman of the Association. Giles L. Ayvrett, secretary and Drayton McLane, treasurer. The Association will meet monthly.

As the men were gathered about the festive hour it was not known why Judge Kemp, Judge Watson and the County Engineer radiated gloom, but the truth came out when it was known that they had just come from attending a "big feed" elsewhere. Even a good scout will sometimes reach his limit.

MEANDERINGS OF THE MISSIONARY.

We spent Saturday night and Sunday with the saints at Yarrington. The plucky little Baptist church there led by their noble consecrated Pastor, E. M. Agee of Waco had just completed their new meeting house and it was dedicated to the Lord free of debt at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday.

E. L. Springer preached the dedicatory sermon from Hagai 2:7 to an overflowing house at the conclusion of which sumptuous dinner was served to a multitude of people from far and near with plenty and to spare.

The afternoon was spent in rendering a splendid Program for Mothers' Day though one week early, special songs and readings were rendered to the delight of every body, special mention should be made of the Misses Dycus who sang two sweet duets and Mrs. West and Prof. B. B. McKinney, who sang a solo each.

Revs. Williamson, Agee and R. C. White delivered appropriate addresses aided by the three Missionary who took an offering for the 750 orphans at Buckner Orphans Home near Dallas who have no mothers to bless their unfortunate lives. Seventeen dollars plus was contributed.

At the close of the evening services I hied away to Walker's Creek where I preached to an appreciative audience and collected $10 for Association Missions.

Bro. L. B. Arnold the newly elected pastor at Marlow preached at both hours there on Sunday and reports a gracious time and here he took a nice offering for our 75-million campaign.

Everybody seems happy over the gracious revival at the First Baptist Church in Cameron. Dr. Lee M. White of Winston, N. C. a brother to our good pastor, is doing the preaching and a mighty preacher he is while our beloved B. B. McKinney one the directors of music in our great Seminary at Fort Worth, has charge of the choir and brings us in touch with heaven with his sweet songs.

Let service be your watch-word, extend a helping hand—"Kwit-cher Belli-akin" and prove yourself a man.
E. L. SPRINGER.

METHODIST BROTHERHOOD.

On Wednesday night May 16 the Methodist Brotherhood will hold their regular monthly meeting. A change in the program has been announced. Heretofore the women of the church have been serving the banquet to the men. This time the women will be seated at the table and the men will furnish the menu and do the serving. The program will be furnished by the women of the church.

NOTED METHODIST PREACHER COMING TO PREACH HERE

RESIDENT BISHOP OF JAPAN
AND KOREA TO BE IN CAM-ERON SUNDAY.

Bishop H. A. Boles, resident bishop of Japan and Korea and recognized as one of the leading preachers of the denomination will preach in Cameron Methodist church Sunday and Sunday night.

Announcement of the services was made by Rev. Ira F. Key, pastor of the church. Great crowds are expected to hear the Bishop and all preparations are being made for the services.

Bishop Boles is a native Texan, having graduated at Southwestern University and was for a number of years pastor in leading pulpits after which he was elected president of what was then known as Polytechnic College at Fort Worth.

When the Southern Methodist University was organized at Dallas he was elected vice president, from which position he was elected to the general secretariatship of the general board of church extension with headquarters at Louisville, Ky.

At the end of the term he was elected President of the Southern Methodist University to succeed Dr. R. S. Hyer. At the last general conference held at Hot Springs, Ark., he was elected bishop and assigned to his present position in the Orient.

He is in America in the interest of the Centenary campaign. When in Korea he resides with Dr. Hardie who is the Missionary from the Cameron church. This makes his coming to Cameron of greater interest because in direct touch with the church's own missionary. Among the Methodists he is known as one of the greatest preachers of the church. He will preach Sunday morning and evening.

BAPTIST LAYMEN HOLD REGULAR MEETING OF ORGANIZATION HERE.

On Wednesday night preceeding the beginning of the Baptist revival meeting, the Baptist Laymen held the second meeting of the Laymen of the church organization.

The meeting was called to order by the pastor and election of officers held. J. M. Ralston was elected president. Three vice presidents were elected. They are to have charge of three separate groups of the work divided as follows: Stewardship, Service and Soul Winning. The vice presidents are O. L. Kidd, F. J. Beckerman and J. C. Mayfield.

Constitution and by laws were read and adopted. The meetings during the summer months will be held on the first Thursday nights at 8 o'clock.

J. C. Martin was elected secretary and J. B. White was elected chairman of publicity.

Dr. John L. Denson addressed the laymen on the deacon from the standpoint of the layman. Responding F. E. Reid talked on the layman from the standpoint of the deacon.

After the speakers had concluded President Ralston introduced a guessing contest from questions propounded and written by Mrs. Ralston.

The ladies of the Junior Aid society served cake and cream to the laymen.

METHODIST MISSIONARY.

The Methodist ladies met at the church at 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon for a business session. Program opened with song, after which Mrs. R. H. McIntosh led in prayer. Mrs. R. S. Boykin gave a scripture reading from the First chapter of Psalms.

Business—Motion carried to change the hour of meeting to four o'clock instead of three-thirty. Mrs. W. O. Triggs gave the report from the committee working to close the drug stores and all drink stands on Sunday. Four drug stores have signed to close and have the promise of two drink stands. Each Circle is to get out a poster during the month of May. A membership campaign is to be put on in June. Following the business the Missionary Bulletin news was given. The Council meeting for next year will be held in Tampa, Florida. Prayer of dismissal by Mrs. W. H. Triggs.

PRESBYTERIAN AUXILIARY.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Auxiliary held interesting circle meetings last Monday afternoon. Circle one served a delightful supper to the Laymen's Association Tuesday evening at the church. No. 2 met with Mrs. John Edwards for Bible study, with Mrs. Lou Meyers as leader. There were six members present. No. 3 met with Mrs. Judd Davis for a social afternoon. These ladies spent the time very pleasantly with needlework and pleasant conversation. The hostess served and ice course with cake to seven members present.

BAPTIST AUXILIARY.

Greek Refugees Draw Daily Bread Rations At Stations of the American Red Cross

All last winter bread lines such as these at Salonica were common sights in Greece, where the American Red Cross was, and still is, feeding half of the million refugees from Anatolia and Eastern Thrace, who fled from their homes following the defeat of the Greek armies and sought refuge in the port towns and on the isles of Greece.
The emergency was such that

Greece was utterly unable to care for the vast multitude of immigrants who flocked to her shores. It was only through American charity that many thousands of them were able to keep alive. Living in crowded camps, they threatened the entire country with epidemics. It was only by strenuous sanitary measures and an intensive medical program that the American Red Cross workers were able to keep typhus, smallpox and other diseases at a minimum and prevent their spread.

In carrying out its work in Greece the American Red Cross has expended in the neighborhood of $2,600,000. It has met the emergency but it has not solved the problem that the presence of these additional million persons in a country with a total population about that of New York City and an area about that of the State of Ohio, imposes upon the Greek Government.

The grand Jury and the District Court of Milan county, convened here Monday, Judge John Watson, district judge instructed the jury along usual lines and immediately after the address the jury retired and began its work. No unusual condition is said to exist here, the only serious fractures of the law being violating of the Volsted act. It is said the sheriff's department that a number of whiskey cases will be laid before the grand jury for action. A number of burglary cases are also said to be under consideration by the jury. This is the regular term of the court.

MAN CRAWLS 3 MILES IN STORM WITH BROKEN LEG.

Plainview, May 5.—After crawling three miles in a heavy rain with a broken leg and other severe injuries, Chick Northcutt, who lives near Silverton, reached help and probably saved his life. Northcutt was herding cattle on his ranch near Silverton when his horse fell into a steep canyon. He was alone and three miles from the nearest house.

The terrific pain of dragging the broken leg in the cold rain caused Northcutt to faint on the doorstep of the house. He was discovered at once and a doctor was called from Silverton. Although it was at first feared that he would die, Northcutt soon revived, and has been steadily improving. It is now thought that it will be possible to save his leg.

Northcutt is a well known young Plains rancher and a rodeo performer.

From the welcome address of Bro. H. W. Hughes, (to the Grand Lodge of Iowa, 1912, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons) we quote the following as one of the most beautiful tributes to the hallowed memories of home:

"There may be other words as resonant, there may be other words as euphonious, but where, in all the vocabularies of Christendom will you find another word so tender, so comprehensive, so reminiscent, so redolent of joy, so fraught with memory, so expressive of love and happiness and pleasure, as the word 'home?' Whenever you see that word upon the printed page, it stands out in bold relief; it thrills, and chants, and whispers, and prays; It leaps like a flame; it sings like a lark; it twinkles like a star; it coos like a dove; it glows like a sunset; it unfolds within itself the prattle of babes, the laughter of childhood, the innocence of youth, the whisperings of love, the courage of manhood, the purity of womanhood and the benediction of old age. Close your eyes you weary wanderer; close your eyes you nervous wreck, close your eyes you gray haired veteran; close your eyes and let yourself be wafted away upon the perfumed wings of memory, back to Mother's house, back home. The honeysuckle and the morning-glory are in bloom; the dew-drops on the wild grape vine glisten and shine like jewels in a royal diadem. Out in the garden, the old fashioned flowers are in bloom; the verbeans and peonias, the lark spur and merigold, hollyhocks and asters; out yonder in the meadow, the whippoorwill and the bobolink are nesting; down by the old swimming hole, the black-haws and the choke-berries are ripe; out in the orchard, the clover is in bloom, and as you languidly lie on your back and lazily listen to the drowsy hum of the busy bee, you can peer up through the branches of the old apple tree into the glorious sunlight of the noon-day sky and you can thank God for the memory of a happy home. And who is central figure, the animating spirit, the divine soul in this word-picture? Why! there she stands in the door way, with arms extended in welcome; there she stands, smiles and tears struggling for mastery. There she stands, the silver-haired Mother, the un-crowned queen."

Let our mind pause for a moment, and in memory revert to these few lines:

"Backward turn backward oh, time in your flight, Make me a child again just for tonight."

That we might once more kneel at our Mother's knee, with hands in folded position in prayer, with her hand gently resting upon our head, we would repeat after her these lines:

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep,
If I should die before I awake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take."

And then to feel the touch of those dear hands upon our cheeks, gently drawing our face to her's when she would place a "good night's" kiss upon our lips, with the parting benediction, "good night my child, God bless you."

REALTY TRANSFERS FOR MONTH TOTAL $112,381

What is considered here as the most active turnover in real estate both city and farm property in recent years is shown by the total figures compiled for the past month from the records of the county clerk amounting to $112,381.

Farm property in the county furnishes the bulk of the sale figures for the month with Cameron real estate holding a close second.

Those in close touch with the financial outlook attach a great deal of importance to the volume of money invested in real estate during the month of April and point to it as a sign of normal conditions in the business world.

The largest transfer of the month was for farm lands lying in the southwest part of the county near Davilla when 232 1-4 acres was sold by Allen D. Sanford to M. T. Bell for a total of $27,825.

Chief among the items of transfer on Cameron property was the sale by J. A. Bristol of his filling station and residence lots to A. N. Green, Cameron banker, for $9,500. Another large sale of residence property in Cameron was the transfer of the C. H. Yoe home to Mrs. Chas. Sprott for $8,750.

The City of Cameron paid $6,350 for the Green property as an addition to the park site in the city. J. C. Green of Rosebud sold to his brother A. N. Green of Cameron acreage property in Northeast Cameron for $4,000. This property is being developed for residence property.

IF SICK, BILIOUS! START YOUR LIVER

Don't Take Calomel! “Dodson's Liver Tone” Acts Better and Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and “all knocked out,” if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

—But You Can't Ride on the Paint!

Imitation diamonds can be made to look so real and sparkle so brightly that it is difficult to tell them from the genuine.

But try to sell one and you will find out its real worth in a flash.

Same with automobiles. Weaknesses of construction in a closed car can be hidden, for a time, with paint and varnish and fancy fittings. But all is not quality that glitters.

You can't ride on the paint. And when you place such a car in the second hand market, you suffer a heavy depreciation because it lacked real intrinsic value at the outset. Use will never improve a mediocre product.

The second hand floor is the melting pot for automobile values. Cars are stripped of artificial values and only inherent worth counts.

Motor car owners tell us that the trade-in value of any Studebaker car at the end of three or four or five years of useful life is greater than on any other car built today—the percentage of depreciation is the lowest.

No wonder the Studebaker Light-Six Sedan is the fastest selling quality Sedan in the world!

The name Studebaker stands for quality, durability, comfort and integrity.

BEN MILAM, NOTED TEXAS PATRIOT, IS PRAISED IN PAPER

MRS. JEFF T. KEMP SUBMITS ENLOGY OF PIONEER AT HIGHWAY MEETING.

Marking the completion of the Ben Milam highway of Milam county ceremonies were held Tuesday attended by the people of the community near Milano when a picnic was given at the bridge over Cedar Creek.

Mrs. Jeff T. Kemp of Cameron read a paper giving the life history of Ben Milam for whom the road is named and also for whom the county is named.

Judge John Watson was the principal speaker of the day and Hon. C. M. Beard of Milano was master of ceremonies introducing the speakers.

The paper read by Mrs. Kemp is as follows:

The question: "Who will follow old Ben Milam into San Antonio?" asked of the patriots of General Edward "Leson's" army on December 5th, 1835, when volunteers were needed for the capture of the city, could easily be answered in 1923 if a call were made; and we would all volunteer and motor into the city over the magic highway whose completion we are celebrating this afternoon. Thanks to the patriotism of one no less true to Texas than was Ben Milam himself, the Honorable Campbell Beard, who asked the Texas Legislature that this Highway might be designated on the map as the Ben Milam Highway. We have a permanent memorial to a great hero.

For Federal and State aid, for special road tax, for co-operation of officials and courts, for splendid engineers and their assistants, for contractors, bridge builders, road workmen, for splendid road machinery and for excellent native road building material, we would give thanks at this time. Community co-operation has made the opening of this highway possible. Many difficulties which at first seemed insuperable have been overcome in its construction and one more link has been added to the chain of fine highways which connects Milam county with the rest of the world.

As I said we are due thanks to the Honorable Campbell Beard for securing the name "Ben Milam" for this highway and it is to you a sketch of the life of this patriot that I would take a few moments of your time this afternoon. I have compiled this account from several early Texas histories, and published in 1836, one in 1856 written by Milam's friends, and from several others of the most picturesque figures in the early settlement of Texas and the thrilling incidents which marked the beginning of the struggle for independence from Mexico was Colonel Benjamin R. Milam.

He was born near Frankfort, Kentucky in 1791. He was a genuine son of the "dark and bloody ground." His physical developments were of the finest order in stature and features, worthy of the celebrity of his native state. His mind endowed by nature with the richest elements, displayed its uncultivated energies in a passionate fondness for enterprise and adventure. To say he was brave is but faint commendation, a friend said. The illustrious Marshal Ney was not more entitled to the compliment conferred upon him by the great Napoleon "the bravest of the brave than was our own Milam. I have seen him in perilous surroundings, and have never seen him more cheerful and placid, than on such occasions. His temper was naturally calm and serene, and never more so than when in the midst of danger."

He distinguished himself in the war of 1812 and at its close became a trader and adventurer among the Indians on the headwaters of Texas rivers. We read of him in Galveston in 1816 and next on his way to Mexico in 1819 from New Orleans where with Trespacios he sailed to Tampico, Mexico, to enlist in the ranks of the Republican army. "Milam was by birth, education and deliberate preference, a republican. Scarcely had Iturbide been crowned, when Milam indignantly threw up his commission with the bold but perhaps imprudent avowal that "he would never serve a king," and he set out alone to return to the United States. Iturbide dispatched a troop to pursue him and Milam was arrested and confined in a loathsome calaboose. His trials were many, protracted and severe. He bore them with his usual equanimity and finally succeeded in reaching his own country. Burnet says: "have heard him say that he had tenanted almost every prison between the Rio Grande and the City of Mexico." Those who have any knowledge of the fithness of a Mexican prison can form something like an adequate idea of his sufferings. The writer of these words (David G. Burnet, first president of the Republic of Texas) knew this gallant man in Texas, as early as 1819; he had camped with him many nights on the head of the Colorado, having the star spangled heavens for a canopy, and the earth shrouded by a buffalo robe for a couch, he has witnessed him in many varieties of conditions that try men's spirits, and has never known him to deviate from the path of truth and rectitude, to flinch from danger or fatigue, or to express a dishonorable sentiment.

For his service to the Republican cause in Mexico he received one league of land which was afterwards increased to eleven leagues, but unfortunately for Milam he located his claim to far to the east and when boundary lines were run the land was found to be in Miller county, Ark. With an English General, Arthur G. Wavell, he became interested in colonial contracts in Texas on Red River. By 1828 a good many families had been introduced, but the contract was not completed by Milam. At this time he was an inmate in the home of his friend, Judge Ellis, although he maintained a ranch of his own. Milam was never married.

Later he obtained an Empresario grant and contract for settling the country at the head of the San Marcos River. Dr. Beale was associated with him in this contract and the grant is named on some of the land maps as Beale's grant. The grant was sold to Baring Brothers of London, England.

Milam was in the fight in Nacogdoches in 1832.

In 1835 he was in Satillo, Mexico, and procured from the legislature the exclusive right to navigate the Colorado River. It is a significant fact that Milam had a contract to remove the raft from the mouth of the River—the same raft that the present Legislature has been asked to rebate State Taxes to Wharton county for twenty-five years to remove.

While in Mexico Milam learned of the despotic plans of Santa Anna recently came into power and they were denounced by the incorruptible patriot. Milam was again thrown into prison in Monterey. He won the confidence of his jailor and with the help of an outside friend who furnished a fleet horse he made his escape and fled towards Texas. He reached Texas at a most opportune moment.

It was just after the skirmish about the cannon at Gonzales. Capt. Collinsworth had raised a company for the capture of Goliad. Milam was stealthily making his way eastward when he fell in with Collinsworth's men. He at first supposed that they were Mexicans and prepared to sell his life as dearly as possible, preferring death to another imprisonment. Listening closely he discovered that he was among friends. Milam joined himself to this company, choice spirits of his own mettle and caliber, and the Mexican garrison at Goliad was compelled to lay down their arms and surrender.

In October 1835, Milam was ordered to command a spy company and repair to the vicinity of San Antonio where he was instructed to effect a junction with troops ordered from Goliad. General Edward Burleson was in command and it was due to impatience over what seemed to some of his adventurous soldiers, an unnecessary delay that Milam gave voice to the historic query "Who will follow old Ben Milam into San Antonio?" Two hundred men responded to the call, and eventually the force was increased to 301. The assault was undertaken and though the intrepid leader lost his life on the second day the adventure was entirely successful and the Mexican garrison of 1350 men laid down their arms and surrendered to this greatly inferior force. The death of Milam was directly due to that disregard for personal safety that always marked his conduct. The only cannon of the besiegers was dismounted and Milam went out into the open to direct its recovery when he was struck by a canister shot. But his dauntless spirit lived with his followers and the fury of the attack was not lessened until success crowned the efforts of another dauntless three hundred. One historian says that the capture of San Antonio the most gallant and arduous achievement of the Texas Revolution. It was the prelude to the program of the capture of Monterey by General Taylor and Ben Milam was the author and emphatically the hero of it.

Colonel Frank W. Johnson, who was elected by his men to succeed Milam in command of his fighting troops, has this to say in his history "Texas and Texans" recently edited and published under direction of the History Department of the University of Texas about the burial of Milam's body.

"When Milam was killed, the Masonic fraternity then present, took charge of his body, and, with a proper detail of troops, he was buried in the yard—east side of the Veremendi House, with military honors. His remains were subsequently disinterred and deposited in the old burying ground west of the town with appropriate Masonic and military honors."

He is now resting in a tomb on Milam Square, San Antonio, where the Daughters of the Republic of Texas have erected a monument to his memory.

His gun and some of his personal belongings may be seen in the Old Land office building which has been given over to the Daughters of the Republic and the Daughters of the Confederacy by the State of Texas as a place where relics of the heroes of Texas may be preserved.

John Henry Brown, a noted historian pays this glowing tribute to Ben Milam.

"The fall of Milam called forth sorrow in every household in Texas, and not in Texas alone, for Kentucky mourned her patriot son, from Clay, and the most distinguished in the state to the humblest. In Arkansas, in Louisiana, in the valley of the Mississippi and in the noblest breasts of Mexico, the death of Milam was also deplored as a loss to liberty and to civilization. All felt that a loyal and unselfish champion of human rights had fallen—gone down as Warren at Bunker Hill, to be remembered in the generations to follow as the embodiment of all that constitutes the noble, the brave and the true in man."

DISTRICT SINGING CONVENTION WILL CONVEENE MAY 20

ALL DAY RELIGIOUS MELODIES TO ENTERTAIN PEOPLE HERE.

The Salty District Singing Convention will have an all day singing here the 20th day of May, Sunday week. The Convention will be opened at 10 o'clock. The pastor and officers of the Methodist church have kindly and graciously tendered their handsome new building for a place of meeting. If the weather is not very unusual there will be a large out of town attendance. Basket dinner will be served at the Park. A committee has been appointed to secure baskets and most of the Cameron people have been communicated with, and as they always do, have responded generously. In fact, some members of the committee report that the task of asking for the baskets has been a pleasure because the people have been so nice.

This is the first time the Convention has met north of Little River, but it was glad to enter new fields, and no doubt the meeting here will be a pleasant memory to them.

For the convenience of those who prepare baskets, and may not be able to attend the dinner at the park, or if for any other reason they prefer to deliver their baskets early, a committee will be at the Park after 9 o'clock Sunday to receive and care for all baskets. Those sending baskets will place their name on them so that committee may check their names off the list of those promising baskets.

Classes are expected from several parts of the county, and among those prominently identified with the Convention are: A. J. Jackson, president, and his sons, of Salty, Alex Conoley of Conoley, W. W. Kyle and family of Forest Grove, W. W. Block and E. Crump of Pleasant Hill, R. L. King of Millerton, as well as many other good singers and prominent people. Cameron will also have a class, consisting of members from the different church choirs and Miss Nell DuBois will be director. This alone will be an attractive feature.

The Conventions are opened and closed with prayer, and only religious songs are sung. The services are impressive and designed for religious influence.

Mayor J. B. White will deliver a short address of welcome to the Convention.

MARLOW SCHOOL CLOSES WITH PLAY.

The Marlow school, which was taught by Mrs. Lola Kirk and Miss Edith Foster, closed last Friday with an interesting play following that night, entitled "The Last Half-Day in the District School."

This play represented the school day of olden times.

The teacher, Prof. Catchemati, was well carried out by Leslie Boatright.

The play consisted of three acts, of which the first was the examination day in geography, physiology, read-and-spelling.

Every question asked by the teacher was answered in some witty way.

The next act was reciting and singing by the scholars and the last act was an amusing squabble by the school committee who were composed of J. L. Hobson, R. L. Story and J. D. Stuts and a meddlesome mother who was played by Miss Lillie Shequit.

The play was a continuous laughter from start to finish and enjoyed by the large crowd present. Quite a number of people being present from other places.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS chill Tonic given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. "Prescription for Parents" is a reliable guide.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

CITY IS REMINDED SANITATION DUTY

COMMERCIAL CLUB REFERS DRAINAGE CONDITION TO COUNCIL FOR ACTION.

The City is reminded of its duties in enforcing sanitation in the City by the Commercial Club which at its regular meeting Friday night on motion of Wm. Cobb, chairman of the civic improvement committee, called attention to conditions.

Particular reference was made to the stagnant water pool under the buildings near the P. O. Adams store. After the matter was brought up by Mr. Cobb it was referred to the City Council for action.

The city recently furnished motor trucks and co-operated with the Civic League in the biggest clean up in recent years but did not receive any active co-operation from some who should have helped. Chairman Cobb reported to the club that the clean up had been successful.

The city has had under operation for several months a program of sanitation in the negro and other sections under the direction of Marshal Lucas.

It is believed the city will take immediate action to relieve this condition referred to by the Commercial Club and to be more responsive in the future to the civic ideas entertained by the club.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean
Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean. A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

LADY WAS IN A BAD FIX FROM NERVOUS INDIGESTION

Biloxi, Miss.—"I had, for a year or more, nervous indigestion, or some form of stomach trouble," says Mrs. Alonzo Ford, 1117 Clay Street, this city. "The water I drank at that time seemed to constipate me. I would suffer until I got so nervous I wanted to get down on the floor and roll. I felt like I could tear my clothes.

"Every night, and night after night, I had to take something for a laxative, and it had to be kept up nightly. My side would pain. I looked awful. My skin was sallow and seemed spotted. I would look at my hands and arms, and the flesh looked lifeless.

"I happened to get a Birthday Almanac, so I told my husband I would try the Black-Draught, which I did. I took a few big doses. I felt much better. My liver acted well. I made a good, warm tea and drank it that way. Soon I found that nervous, tight feeling was going, as was the pain in my side. I found I did not have to take it every night. Soon, after a few weeks, I could leave it off for a week or so, and I did not suffer with constipation. . . I gained flesh. I have a good color, and believe it was a stubborn liver, and that Black-Draught did the work.

"I went to my mother's (Mrs. Deeters) one day, and she wasn't well at all. . . I told her we'd try Black-Draught. We did, and now she keeps it to take after eating. It certainly helped her, and we neither will be without it in our homes. It is so simple, and the dose can be regulated as the case may be. We use small doses after meals for indigestion, and larger doses for headache or bad liver."

Thedford's Black-Draught liver medicine is for sale everywhere. J 64 change in the weather, my kidneys bothered me by acting too freely. There was a sediment in the secretions and they burned in passage. My back got so lame, the muscles all through it were sore. I had taken all kinds of medicine, but didn't get any help at all. The doctor told me to take Doan's Kidney Pills. I got a supply of Doan's and took them as directed. They cured me and my kidneys have been strong since then."

DEMONSTRATION OF CEMENT ON FARM HERE ON MAY 22

COUNTY AGENT ALSO PLANS TRIP TO A. & M. COLLEGE THIS SUMMER.

County Agent George Banzhaf will begin the latter part of May to carry out a schedule of visits with farmers and club boys to A. & M. College to give them instruction in the improved farming and stock raising methods.

Last year in conjunction with the Cameron Commercial Club Mr. Banzhaf made a number of trips to the college and carried with him farmers and local stock and poultry men.

This year Mr. Banzhaf hopes to make a larger number of trips to the college. He is asking the local club to furnish transportation to the college as a means of helping the farmers get in better touch with the improved agricultural methods at the college.

A demonstration to emphasize the value of cement on the farm will be held here on May 22 at 10 a. m. under the direction of the A. & M. College working with the Portland Cement Company.

County Agent George Banzhaf was in Cameron Tuesday to arrange for a location for the demonstration. The Griffith poultry farm north of the city has been selected for the demonstration. Efforts are being made to induce the farmers to attend the demonstration.

HEAVY DAMAGE TO CROPS IS REPORTED

HAIL DESTROYS MUCH COTTON AND CORN IN MILAM COUNTY.

Reports reaching Cameron Wednesday morning from over the county indicate a heavy damage by hail and wind Monday night. The rainfall is reported heavy in some sections of the county but in Cameron the fall was light.

In the vicinity of Buckholts, Yarrington, Watt Smith and Marek as well as Maysfield and Branchville, the hail is said to have done considerable damage to growing crops. In some places cotton that had been chopped out was beaten down and will have to be replanted.

Corn and other grains also suffered heavy damage. The hail fell in torrents in some sections and the stones were large. It is estimated many hundreds of acres of both cotton and corn will have to be replanted in the county.

First Confederate Reunion in Texas

Held at Dallas in 1867, With Jefferson Davis as Guest of Honor

Five and fifty years have passed since the first gathering of Southern Soldiers was held in Texas after the surrender at Appomattox. This event took place in 1867 at Dallas, when that city was only a village, with a few business houses around the courthouse square and when the nearest railroad point was the terminus of the H. and T. C. at Milligan.

The men who came back from the war, when the tide of battle had turned against the Confederacy and the noble Lee realized the futility of further sacrifices, saw their farms grown up in weeds, their ranches barren of stock and the kind of money they had of little value. Two years later, however, witnessed the wheels of progress slowly turning again in spite of the great difficulties that had been encountered, and it was then that a barbecue was given on the grounds where the Texas State Fair at Dallas is held today. This barbecue was for the veterans of "the Lost Glorious Cause," and the guest of honor was Jefferson Davis.

Old timers still remember what a glorious love feast that was. Notables came from all over the state and it was then that the vanquished chieftain clasped hands once more with his comrades through the strife, including John H. Reagan, who for years following was referred to as "The Last Rose of the Confederate Cabinet."

A Striking Contrast.

A striking contrast might be drawn between that reunion of the long ago and those held now. The participants were still young and with life before them. In many instances mere boys, wearing homespun uniforms of gray, occupied positions in the line that proudly stepped to the strains of martial music. And the voices that chimed in to the tune of "Dixie," the "Bonnie Blue Flag," or "Nellie Gray" were strong and clear. Now each form is bent, each head is crowned with snow, each voice is husky and only the heart is able to march in rhythm and order to the rattle of the drums.

"There was much rejoicing as comrades met for the first time after coming home."

There was much rejoicing as comrades met for the first time after coming home, and it was interesting to hear one Johnny "tell off" on another about some foraging expedition. "Don't you remember, Bill," the conversation would go, "that time you carried a solid log on your shoulder for a quarter of a mile, thinking it was a bee-gum rich with honey?" "Yes, I do," Bill would retort, "and I haven't forgotten, either, that big red-headed Irish woman out there east of Vicksburg, who chased you into camps with a garden rake and made you give up the old Dominecker rooster you yanked out of her back yard."

All seemed to be having a good time that day in spite of the distressing political conditions over the state. Jefferson Davis was a popular idol, even though a fallen chief, and those in a reminiscent mood took occasion to refer to that splendid service he had rendered his country—not only in the halls of congress and as a member of the president's cabinet at Washington—but with the army, also, when his valiancy as colonel of the Mississippi Rifles won for the United States forces the battle of Monterey. There was much bitterness because of the treatment that had been accorded him at the hands of the North, and a husky denunciation of the tales and slanderous statement that he had been captured after the fall of Richmond dressed in the garb of a woman. Lincoln also came in for a great deal of criticism by veterans on account of the proclamation setting the negroes free. But the lapse of more than half a century has softened the heart of the South toward this man, and today the brave soldiers who followed Lee can join hands with the aged warriors of Grant in proclaiming him an American big enough for the whole nation to love.

Only a Few Patriots Left.
Only a few of those valiant fellows who met at that first reunion are still living. Davis, Reagan, Mills and Cabell and many others whose names once electrified every patriotic heart in Texas have all gone home. A change has come in individuals, in customs and in the pursuits of the people. There were log cabins along the Trinity then where now the shadows of sky-scrapers fall. And some of the old slave dardies, still true to their masters, attended the barbecue and there was one in particular, Uncle Eph Williams, who carried his banjo along and said he wanted to play for Marse Jeff.

The devotion of most of the negro men of that period to their owners and the affection of the black mammies toward the women folks, is a memory of the past that remains in the old timer's heart like the scent of the rose after the vase is broken. When the "Missus" wept the old auntie wept, and never were the poor soul's limbs so tired, or the night so dreary, that she would not creep out through the cabin door to answer a call for help from those she served. "Now yo' mussn't worry yo' poor little self, honey; I've right heah wid yo'," were words that assured and comforted, and with an apron as white as the driven snow she would softly wipe every tear away.

Such negroes did not care for freedom from kind masters; they preferred to stay on the plantation where their black picaninies had been born, and where they had played and danced and formed affections for the family that were hard to break. Some of them rejoiced when they heard that Jefferson Davis was coming to Texas and a few of that honest, loyal old type planned to have him keep them from being "turned loose." It was another kind and a younger generation, with poisoned minds, that made race trouble.

Twenty-five years later another reunion was held in the same city. This time there came to Dallas as a special guest Miss Winnie Davis, daughter of her deceased father, Jefferson Davis, and beloved as "the Daughter of the Confederacy." She smiled her way into the hearts of the thousands of veterans who had gathered for the big encampment. Lawrence Sullivan Ross was then governor of Texas and Roger Q. Mills, another stalwart of that period who was enjoying international fame because of the tariff bill that bore his name, was called on to deliver an address to his old comrades of the battlefield.

Last of a Mighty Guard.

This reunion was almost as notable as the former one, but the veterans who marched in columns of fours were not as straight in form or as sprightly as those who were reviewed by the chief of a quarter of a century earlier. Time was beginning to touch with unsteadiness some of their steps and everywhere was to be seen the silver threads made by the passing years. But as we come on down to the present a still greater change may be seen. The ranks have been thinned by the vicissitudes of Time. That brave, heroic and all-but-invincible army, once the flower of a chivalrous nation, is now strong only in the majesty of eternal fame. Never again will it form in battle array! Never again will it march with heart-stroke and drum-beat to the inspiring notes of "Dixie."

Today the last of the mighty guard stands facing the sunset. Soon we shall see arise in brilliancy the star of the evening and hear the gentle ripple of waters as they are parted by the boatman's oars; then that fast-fading remnant of the hosts of chivalry will embark and wave us farewell. But what an imprint these men will leave upon the sands of time! What a splendid contribution theirs shall be to civilization—to the brave, true and constructive manhood of the world!

Fishing on Devil's River

A Picturesque Stream of Southwest Texas

By AUSTIN CALLAN

There are two things for which I am a downright sticker: Old-fashioned democracy and truthful fish stories. But when a person goes in quest of the finny tribe, he ought to come home with an honest report of the kind of luck he has. There is no good reason for falsifying as to the size of the catch, because nothing is at stake. If you absolutely fail to score at all, there is a legitimate means of saving your reputation. Just blame the failure to an east wind or to an unfavorable moon, or something of that sort. It is not only an inexcusable disregard for the truth to say that "the big fellow got away," but it is an acknowledgement of bad management. You cannot, however, be held responsible by the worst knocker in the community for what the weather caused or for the influence of an uncontrollable planet thousands of miles away.

With this simple presentation of my principles regarding politics and goggle-eyed perch, I am going to take the reader to certain of the choice fishing places of west Texas and relate to him honest-to-goodness facts regarding some catches I have seen. Before launching into a more animated presentation of these truths, however, I want to make it clear that if any statement here brings either my friends or myself into conflict with the Texas laws protecting the finny tribe, I reserve the right to withdraw, retract, or expunge from the record, in whole or in part, what is here said. The best fishing I have ever seen in Texas was on the Devil's River. No stream has greater variety of the piscatorial tribe. There you find the gamest bass that ever struck at a doliwagac, as well as buffalo, perch, channel cat, and blue and yellow cat weighing from fifty to one hundred pounds.

Devil's River is in a rugged, picturesque portion of Southwest Texas. It is scarcely fifty miles long, yet it is one of the prettiest and boldest of our streams. In places the water runs through deep, narrow channels and again it spreads out several hundred yards wide. You can pick what you want for the various kinds of fishing.

An Ideal Camp.

In company with C. K. McDowell of San Antonio and W. K. Shipman, Dee Newton and Doctor Scott, all reputable citizens of Del Rio, this writer and "Nigger Bob," the cook, pitched camp at Blaine's Lake, about six or seven miles from the mouth of the stream. It was a pretty place, with spreading pecan trees and a great rugged bluff that frowned down from above.

We had tents, cots with screens over them to keep out the mosquitoes, a big chuck box full of everything good to eat and five hundred pounds of ice for cooling our "buttermilk." W. K. Shipman was the best of the bunch with a rod and reel; being an insurance man he knew just how to hook and to hold. And while we did not arrive at the river until 11 o'clock in the morning, he had a string of bass by noon that would have qualified him for membership in any "Izaak Walton Club" on earth. There were seventeen speckled beauties from twelve to fourteen inches long, and he caught them with a silver colored doliwagac, using a Shakespeare reel.

Mr. Shipman made all his casts for these bass in a small pool of swift water just below the main body of the lake, which is very deep and a mile long. Fishing close to him and with a similar reel and a green and yellow doliwagac I only got two, and one of these was scarcely seven inches long. I am not going to acknowledge, though, that Mr. Shipman is that much better fisherman than I am. It is no deviation from the policy hereinbefore announced of sticking to the truth, to say that there isn't a man in Texas who can yank seventeen bass out of a hole of water while I am only getting two out, unless he has some advantage. In this instance the fault was altogether with the fish. They chose silver in preference to green and yellow and I had no way of helping it.

On the second day of the outing, however, I started in to play averduois against Mr. Shipman's flaunted numbers. Cat-fishing is really my long suit. You can sit in the shade with plenty of well baited hooks and count on getting as much "beef" as the fellow out in the sun, working like a Trojan. It was a contest of skill and endurance against long-drawn-out patience, and when it comes to patience under such circumstances, the Statue of Liberty hasn't anything on me. But for some reason, set hooks didn't prove attractive that day. Fish are very much like folks and have a way of always doing the contrary thing. I expected them to bite ravenously and they didn't bite at all. The low descending sun found me wending my way back to camp with one big headed polliwog that only weighed a pound and a quarter.

Shipman's catch for the day was forty-seven nice bass. He beat me in gets good and ready.

I continued the set hook plan of fishing, however, in spite of the poor showing made the first day. It is the easiest and I am always inclined to follow the line of least resistance in such sport, if that line hangs out a promise of anything for the pan. In this instance it ever, that we carried him at least a hundred yards from the water's edge. He was a dandy, weighing almost sixty pounds and that night around the camp fire, there was no one to "hurrah" me.

Channel Cat Sporty.

Next to bass, channel cat are the sportiest fish found in Devil's River. Of course, there is no comparison between the two kinds. Nothing approaches the sport of making a cast across the glassy waters of a rippling stream and having about a four-pound beauty strike your doliwagac. There's when your blood tingles and you realize that the fellow who invented this modern tackle had a jam up conception of the heart's desire for real excitement.

But these Devil's River channel cats are lively boogers and if you appropriately decorate a camp table with them, you are going to have a bunch of enthusiastic patrons when the boys come in about 1 o'clock as hungry as wolves. I never had any trouble doing a good day's business when I went after channel cat on that picturesque stream of the Southwest. They like live bait and if you strike a channel, where there is a school of them, all you have to do is to make the hook attractive enough with minnows and they will play your game to a finish. I got thirteen in as many minutes out of the little deep run where the water was swift and blue. Bob baked these fish after a fashion of his own and made a kind of hot, peppery dip to go over them, and right here is where I am going to introduce C. K. McDowell, Dee Newton and Doctor Scott into my story. They each held that a catfish was food only for the beneficiaries of "treason, strategy and spoils," and that no real one hundred per cent game sport would eat them. But they hit the table in "shock formation" when they saw what was on it and I never knew three fellows to enjoy a dinner any more in all my life.

The Llano River is also a splendid fishing stream, and I have had some great outings on it. However, the very first chance I have I am going to tell you about a perfectly wonderful experience of mine trolling in the silvery waters of the San Saba River. But because of the skepticism of a few of the readers this will not be undertaken until I have some photographs and documentary evidence to accompany the narrative.

LUBBOCK HAS LIBRARY

The city of Lubbock has a library. It is small as yet, having only 1,500 books and about 250 members, but it has the support of the business men and a promise of steady accessions to its books.

AMARILLO'S MUSIC FESTIVAL

The opening of the new municipal auditorium in Amarillo early in April was featured by a six-day Panhandle Music Festival. Amarillo is the metropolis of the Panhandle and the festival was organized and carried out on a scale befitting a metropolis. Mme. Schumann-Heink and other world-famous musicians appeared on the program.

weight, numbers and quality. But it takes just as much skill to persuade a polliwog to bite, when he is indifferent about it, as it takes to get a seventy-pound jolly-cat to bite. That is a matter that has to be settled altogether in the mind of the fish. You can pick the right bait for a hook and choose an ideal place to set it out but you cannot force even a minnow to nibble at it until he saw that it was wound around some roots and limbs and persuaded Bob to take off his clothes and go in after my promising catch. Several times he got scared and wanted to come out and once he said: "Boss, ah sho' believes we got a hipenoceros."

Finally the two of us got that catfish to the bank. We were so afraid that he would flounder and get back in, how-

AMUSEMENTS—NEW AND OLD.

People must play, as well as work. This is not a theory, but a fact so well established and thoroughly demonstrated that nobody doubts it or argues against it except Thomas A. Edison and a few others. Mr. Edison doesn't play any, but works sixteen hours a day. He is in the seventies now, and is hale and hearty, but some day his program of all work and no play will tell on him. We shall not be surprised in the least if, when Mr. Edison reaches his ninety-ninth or hundredth year, we learn through the press that he is suffering from shattered nerves, prostatic trouble, poor eyesight, or perhaps a general break-down of his system. He will learn, when it is too late, that his program of all work and no play is a drain the human system can not stand, and he will be very sorry indeed that he did not take the advice of physical culture teachers, golf players, tennis fans, fishermen and duck hunters and devote a portion of his time to games or other forms of exercise, and thus preserve his health and strength. When appealed to to take exercise, Mr. Edison tells his advisers that he takes exercise every day—that he walks to and from his work, and that his daily labors keep his body, as well as his mind, thoroughly exercised. But his advisers tell the great electrical wizard that he doesn't take the right kind of exercise—that exercise which results in getting a job of work done is worth nothing in the way of preserving health and strength of body. To be of benefit to one's health, exercise must be of the kind that doesn't perfect machinery or earn bread and butter. This is a matter for psychologists to settle, and so I will not use any of my limited space trying to explain it.

fields would be much cleaner, and fewer wives would have to shave the lawns.

But it is true that people must play as well as work. All work and no play made Jack a dull boy all day, and the world has been talking about Jack, and holding him up as a horrible example of steady work ever since. It is also true that people must be amused as well as instructed. Most of us look upon amusement as being of far greater importance than instruction. We regard a thousand dollars a year as a fair price for the labor of those who instruct the coming generations, but are more than willing for those who amuse to earn a hundred thousand per annum. Furthermore, those who instruct must obey the moral code and the proprieties to the letter and shun every appearance of evil, but those who amuse may refract the Volstead law at will and get all the divorces they wish without injuring their standing or curtailing their earning capacity. But, granting that people must play, and be amused, I desire for a time to look at the old and new forms of play and then ask my readers to say whether we have progressed or retrogressed in the matter of games and amusements.

The popular games of a half century ago were bull pen, town ball, horse-shoe and marbles; the popular games of today are baseball, football, tennis and golf. As I remember, more people played horseshoes in the seventies than any other game; and it is probable that more men of today play golf than any other game; and so these two will receive consideration here. To my mind no finer game has ever been played by man than that of pitching horse-shoes, and surely this old-time game has many features to recommend it. The exercise of the game is perfect, developing all the muscles of the body, as well as the lungs. The arms are exercised and trained in pitching, and the lungs are exercised in the constant disputes arising over whether a clear ringer was made and which shoe is nearest the post. When there was a very close decision, as there was in every game, the whole body was exercised in an old-fashioned fisticuff fight. There was never any squabbling with the umpire, and never a claim was set up that a game was stolen. A black eye, or a bloody nose, settled the dispute to the satisfaction of all, and the decision was never again questioned or even referred to. I have in my possession now a letter from a director of athletics in the University of Texas, which says there is more real exercise for the body in a game of horse-shoes than in a game of golf or tennis or any other new-fangled game. But while those versed in physical culture admit that horse-shoe pitching gives the body more and better exercise than playing a game of golf or tennis, I feel that all true patriots and publicists, after a mention of these virtues, should give special stress to another feature of the noble game of horse-shoes, and that feature is the cheapness of the game to those who play it. Every great question, and every game we play, should be considered from an economic, as well as from a physical or moral viewpoint. Failure to do this has plunged our country hopelessly into debt and laid the awful curse of an income tax, and income tax reports, upon a burdened and distracted people.

I haven't the statistical information at hand, but if I had I am sure I would show that there is now enough money invested in golf and tennis paraphernalia to pay the public debt of the United States. Thousands of acres of fine land are in use as golf links and tennis courts and parks for other games and amusements. And then, think of the cost of golf and tennis suits! I am told that as much as ten dollars is frequently paid for a golf or tennis bat, to say nothing of the high cost of balls used in the game. After considering the enormous expenditure of money for paraphernalia used in the games of the present day, turn over a page and figure the cost of the noble game of horse-shoes. I can't see where as much as a nickel could be spent on the grand old Democratic game. Any blacksmith will gladly give a horse-shoe club a set of horse-shoes and the necessary stobs to pitch the horse-shoes at, and a good pitching ground can be had, without rental, at any shop or at the back of any store. The horse-shoe pitcher wears no jaunty cap or suit, and knows nothing of belts or fancy shoes. He pitches in his shirt-sleeves and his trousers are held in place by galluses. He is out nothing whatever in a game of horseshoes except for the tobacco he chews. Seeing, then, that horseshoe pitching gives the finest possible exercise to the body and lungs, and costs absolutely nothing, why have we left this noble game of the fathers to engage in games that exercise us less and call for the lavish expenditure of money? The answer is easy—foreign immigration! We were a happy, contented, prosperous people, playing the noble and exhilarating game of horse-shoes, until strangers came from beyond the seas and lured us away from the fine old democratic game to games invented and fostered by the dukes and lords of monarchical Europe. Just now certain manufacturers of the East are demanding that we raise the bars and let all the Europeans who so desire come to our shores. Don't do it; close the gates against the cockneyed airs and expensive games of the old world, and let the patriotic sons of our noble sires demand that we return to the game played by our forefathers in the good old days before we had appendicitis, adenoids, flu or Johnson grass.

But we have made other changes in our forms of exercise and play, against which all Americans ought to enter vigorous protest. I am aware of the fact that I tread on dangerous ground when I undertake to discuss this subject, which is none other than the old subject of the dance. Dancing has caused trouble since the world began. Even good old David started domestic trouble when he forgot his age and standing, and knocked the back-step and cut the pigeon-wing before the ark. I will not advocate any particular form of dancing, for the simple reason that many good people say, dance not at all; neither will I declare against dancing, because many good people dance when they are at home, and most all people who know how to dance, dance when they get away from home. But I do stand for the old-time dance against the latest dance of the present day. The old-time democratic dance was known as the quadrille, which name was a misnomer. The definition of the word gives the impression that only four couples took part in the dance, but in those good old days people paid little attention to dictionaries or the meaning of words, and as many couples danced as could get on the floor after the bed had been taken down and the bureau had been removed to the yard or kitchen. The dance usually began about 9 o'clock at night, the time of beginning being dependent upon the coming and mood of the fiddler, and how long it took to play the game of snap, which always preceded the dance. I lived in several communities during those good old days, but never resided in a community in which there was more than one fiddler. In summer time, when the revival meetings were in progress, the fiddler was looked upon as a very ordinary person and an incorrigible sinner, but in the winter season, when dance time was in flower, no king or lord was ever contrarier or more petted. He knew very well how dependent the dancers were upon him, and the knowledge of his power made him sullen and petulant. The fiddler was always the first person invited to a dance, but I never knew one to show up until a committee went after him. Frequently a second committee had to be sent, especially if there was some one on the first committee he didn't like. And when the fiddler would finally reach the scene of the dance, he was always in bad humor. He would examine his fiddle strings, declare them no good, and refuse to draw a bow until someone went to town for new strings and rawsum. The fiddler's disposition usually improved, however, as the night wore on. After each set he would accompany some of the boys out to where refreshments were hidden in a fence corner or hollow log, and upon his return would play with greater zest, and smile as he played. Of course, the dance was interrupted at intervals by the breaking of strings, but as the wee small-hours of the morning came on the fiddler could play any tune called for on one string, and play it until the dancers were exhausted. I am not urging the people to engage in the quadrille dance; I am not saying they should or should not dance, but I do make bold to say the old-fashioned quadrille was far better than the latest Terpsichorean fad of our day—the Marathon dance.

When the old quadrille was danced everybody had a good time. Of course, there were a few awkward, ugly boys like myself, whom the girls would not dance with, but usually some kind-hearted married woman took pity on the awkward fellow, became his partner for a set and made him happy, but if the timid, awkward fellow failed to find a partner, he went out into the yard, peeped through a crack at the others, and knocked the back-step on the ground. All were happy when the party finally broke up, and the boys and girls did a full day's work next day. But what of the Marathon dance, now so popular? First, a Houston girl danced 50 hours, wore out three pairs of shoes and seven pairs of stockings. Then a Fort Worth girl went 60 hours, with a greater number of worn-out shoes and stockings to her credit. Other girls at other places went 80, 90 and 100 hours, and still endurance records are being broken every week. No doubt, some person will dance a week without a breathing spell, and then the world will have a new hero or heroine, before whom the people will bow in lavish homage, and who will be paid several thousand dollars a week by the movies. I do not like to discourage those who are wearing out good shoes, and stockings, and feet, with the hope of making and holding the world's record for going around and around, but I must tell of a record which perhaps will never be broken by the Marathon dancers. Two years ago I visited a state institution at Austin, and while there my attention was attracted by a girl, who was turning around and around, never stopping. The superintendent of the institution told me the poor girl had been turning around, just as I saw her doing then, for four years, stopping only for food and when forcibly taken away and put to bed for a night's sleep. The institution was an asylum for the insane.

COTTON MILLS IN TEXAS

Sixteen Mills Now Operate Within the State Successfully

Texas raises enough cotton annually to supply practically one-half of the cotton mills of America with all their raw material. No other product of the field ever did as much to make a state alternately prosperous and to stagnate its business as cotton. When the yield is good and the price is fair it spreads prosperity from the Red River to the Gulf and from Sabine River to the staked plains. But with a wide-sweeping arm low prices upset our hopes and leave wreck and ruin throughout the state's domain!

In 1920 the farmers of Texas raised a cotton crop with the price of labor and materials so high that the cost of production was at least thirty cents per pound. Deflation came and they were forced to sell at more than fifty per cent below that figure. We know the havoc that it wrought; a great basic industry has been dragging the chains ever since as a consequence, and while they tell us that this is only an aftermath of war, the same thing has come again and again every few years as long back as we can remember.

A history of cotton production in the South, memories of the old days when slave-time darkies sang their melodies through "the fields of snowy white," the ups and downs of the plantations on which the staple has long been grown—these things would make good reading. It is a product linked with the life and customs and welfare of an age that will shine forever out of the dim sky of the past.

But we want to discuss something practical regarding the future of cotton in Texas. We want to add the strength of whatever argument we can make to the proposition of encouraging the establishment of more mills here for the manufacture of cotton goods. Throughout the past we have been furnishing the raw material, shipping it away at our own expense and selling it at a price that we had no voice in making. Then later we have paid the cost of shipping it back, or at least a part of it, in finished products sold to us—also at a price that we had no voice in making.

Average Production 3,700,000 Bales.

The matter has been badly managed; it is still being badly managed, because the great state of Texas that produces annually an average of 3,700,000 bales of cotton—nearly one-half of what is consumed by all the mills of the nation—has only sixteen mills of its own and it is using less than a forty-sixth part of the staple that it grows.

There is no good reason why this condition should continue but there is every argument in favor of our entire thinking citizenship getting back of a mammoth program for relief. One solution, of course, is diversification. No single-crop practice has ever brought prosperity to any agricultural region in America. If you want to find a people continuously "getting along," you hunt for those who make a practice of first of all raising the things that go on their own diningroom tables and then growing, also, a varied line of farm products. It is the case in California and the Middle West states where every community has a creamery, as well as a surplus of poultry and eggs and up-to-date facilities and arrangements for marketing the same.

I had occasion to buy a pound of butter in the biggest cow county in Texas. It was made on the edge of an Arizona desert, where for more than two hundred miles the sand dunes mark a barren waste. We all know that such a thing as that ought not to be. This state should ship butter out instead of in. But Texas and Cotton Mills is the subject to be discussed in this article.

No state is better situated from a climatic standpoint for manufacturing purposes. The winters are short and mild, only a few freezes occur each season and labor can live for less than in the cold north and is therefore better contented and capable of rendering a more satisfactory service.

Power, Labor and Transportation.

The raw material is right at hand. In fact, it is grown in every part of the state, and the variety of the soil is such that any staple demanded from the coarse, harsh fibers to the finest silky ones and in any length desired, can be had. And when it comes to the question of power for operating, what state in the union is more amply provided by nature? There are numbers of streams, as Devil's River, the Gaudalupe, San Marcos, Brazos, Colorado, San Saba and Medina rivers, capable of generating hundreds of thousands of horse-power for the running of machinery, and this power is the most economical that can be had. In addition we have great fields of coal and lignite. Geological reports declare we have in coal alone hundreds of millions of tons that can be mined as cheaply as anywhere in the United States. And with such an inexhaustible supply of fuel in sight we are justified in saying that those who contemplate the erection of cotton mills may feel confidently assured that they can have this fuel at a reasonable price and without any prospect of the supply being exhausted.

Then again, crude oil, which makes a good, economical fuel, is being taken from the earth in Texas by the millions of barrels annually, and the oil fields are constantly growing in scope and numbers. Natural gas, timber, etc., might also be mentioned, but it is hardly necessary, as no question could possibly arise for serious consideration regarding the matter of cheap power for the running of cotton mills. Texas has been wonderfully blessed in this respect, the same as in climatic conditions, and it is a strong point in favor of manufacturing more cotton goods at home.

One of the real problems, if there are any real problems, in the matter of making Texas the center of the cotton mills industry of America, is labor. It has often been said that the kind of labor required for the successful production of cotton goods would have to be imported from mills in other sections of the country; that such labor, being clannish, would not want to remain in the South but would soon return to the industrial centers of the North and East.

Experience controverts such a claim, however. Charles E. Baughman, commissioner of the Markets and Warehouse Department of Texas, has thoroughly investigated this matter and he says: "It has been shown that home labor trained for operating the machines give better and more satisfactory results than the imported labor from Eastern mills. It can be stated as a positive fact that our state can furnish ample labor to all concerns contemplating mill operations, especially in the leading towns and cities where labor is abundant. A large force of labor can also be drawn on at any time from the Mexican population of South Texas, and this class of labor, when trained, is fairly efficient and usually makes good."

The transportation facilities of our state might also be taken into consideration, and it can truly be said that they are ample. Eight long-line railways cross the state in as many different directions and there are innumerable short lines connecting with them. From practically every section there is a direct run either to northern or eastern markets, or to the gulf ports out of which large trade vessels sail.

Valuable Finished Products.

In visiting the Markets and Warehouse department at Austin, the opportunity was given of seeing many articles manufactured by the Texas mills. "A number of these mills are turning out valuable finished products," declared Commissioner Baughman, "products very serviceable in character, such as heavy and light weight ducks, drills, heavy sheetings, pillow tubings, shirts, bed tick, denim and a variety of wrapping twine. These articles are made from cotton ranging in quality from middling to low ordinary, mostly strict low middling to good ordinary, inclusive, with sometimes an injection of a good class of bollies with other grades."

Below is given information regarding the location of the sixteen mills in Texas, together with the number of bales of cotton that each consumes, the number of laborers employed, the amount of the pay roll, the class of goods turned out and where marketed.

The Belton Yarn Mills of Belton use weekly 100 bales of strict middling to strict good middling and manufacture the same into hosiery, underwear and auto tire yarns. This mill operates full time, employs 150 men and has an annual pay roll of over $100,000. Its entire production is sold outside of the state.

The South Texas Cotton Mills, located at Brenham, use 85 bales weekly of bollies to middling, which is made into duck and domestic. The mill runs full time, employs 150 men and has a weekly pay roll of $1,850. Ninety per cent of its output is sold elsewhere than in Texas.

The Corsicana Cotton Mills of Corsicana use 120 bales of cotton weekly, of strictly good ordinary to middling and make light and heavy duck. It runs 90 per cent of the time and employs 200 men with a weekly pay roll of $3,100. The product is sold partly in Texas and partly in other states.

The Hillsboro Cotton Mills of Hillsboro use 75 to 80 bales weekly of bollies and tinges to strict middling. A variety of goods are manufactured with 180 employees and a weekly pay roll of $1,200. The output is marketed in and out of Texas.

The Waxahachie Cotton Mills of Waxahachie use 75 bales of good ordinary to strict middling weekly and make osnaburgs and ducks; 175 men are employed and the weekly pay roll is $2,250. Its products are partly sold in the state.

The Bonham Cotton Mills of Bonham use 72 bales weekly of bollies to strict middling and make sheeting and duck which is sold in the state. Two hundred men are employed and the weekly pay roll is $2,500.

The Sherman Mfg. Co. of Sherman uses 110 bales weekly of strict good ordinary to good middling and makes duck sold in and out of the state. One hundred and sixty men are employed and the weekly pay roll is $2,500.

The Texas Cotton Mill Co. at McKinney uses 100 bales of bollies to middling and makes domestic and duck. It employs 250 men and has a pay roll of $3,000 weekly.

The Postex Cotton Mills of Post use 70 bales of strict good ordinary to strict middling and makes bleached sheets and

MOUNTS FOR THE CAVALRY

Mounts have been provided for the 112th Cavalry of the Texas National Guard at Mineral Wells. Eight carloads of horses and equipment was recently received by the troop, which was organized only a short time ago and already has a large and enthusiastic membership. Stables for the horses have been built adjoining the brick armory.

AMARILLO GAS SAID TO CONTAIN HELIUM

Owners of the big gas wells in Amarillo's natural gas field claim that many of the wells contain a high percentage of helium. Heretofore it was assumed that the Petrolia gas fields of Clay county, Texas, contained the only commercial supply of helium in the world. It is estimated that the Amarillo gas wells have 900,000,000 cubic feet of gas shut in awaiting consumption.

NEW TELEGRAPH SYSTEM

A new telegraph system by which the human voice will be substituted for dots and dashes has been copyrighted by E. L. McClure, a telegraph operator of Waco. It is to be taught, it is said, in one of the commercial schools of that city. He uses the Morse system, but has abandoned the dots and dashes and substitutes a sound that is akin to the human voice. He claims it is the "shorthand of telegraphy," and will revolutionize telegraphy.

RANCHMAN TO RAISE BUFFALO

J. P. White is a veteran cattle raiser of Littlefield, in the midst of the Panhandle cattle country. He has raised cattle for many years and is very successful. But he acquired a yearning for buffalo, remembering the days when these animals roamed the plains by the thousands, and has therefore placed a small herd on his ranch. He has started with 29 head and will give them his personal attention.

AUNT CLASSY WRIGHT, 128 YEARS OLD, DIES AT GONZALES

Our Magazine Section, a few months ago, featured a story of five men in Texas who had lived to the ripe old age of 100 years. A recent dispatch in the daily newspaper announced the death of Aunt Classy Wright, at Gonzales, aged 128 years. Aunt Classy was born in Virginia and came to Texas many years ago. Before the war she was the chattel property of the Martindale family. She is survived by one son, eighteen grandchildren and forty-five great-grandchildren.

POPPIES GROWING IN TEXAS.

In the extreme western part of Texas, not far from the edge of New Mexico, there is an uncultivated field in which thousands of wild poppies are growing, vying with the famous poppy fields of Flanders, France. It is said to be the only field of wild poppies in the entire southwest. They are a rich golden yellow with a yellowish red combination center. Efforts to transplant them have proved unsuccessful, but, let alone, they are growing more luxuriantly each year and, as the seeds are blown about, the extent of the poppy field is gradually extending.

WEEP FOR THE WOODPECKER

When a whiskey vault in Harris county was opened recently a young woodpecker was found dead beside a keg of liquor. Officers believe that recently when a still was found in the forks of an old oak tree and removed to the vault there must have been a woodpecker's nest in the tree trunk and that one of the eggs was hatched by the heat of fermenting malt. The bird managed to live for several days on cockroaches and the like but died when this food was exhausted.

WAEOLDER MILITIA WINS CUP

The Waelder company in the 141st infantry, Texas National Guard, has been awarded a silver cup for having maintained the best national guard company during the last six months period. A similar contest for the next 6-month period has already been begun. Col. Will E. Jackson of Hillsboro, commander of the 141st infantry, suggested the contest and offered the cup. There was a hot contest among the companies in the regiment. Lieut.-Col. Will S. Faulkner, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Sam Houston, made the award.

HORSESHOE PITCHING TOURNAMENT.

Pitching horseshoes has come to be a very popular sport at the University of Texas; so popular, in fact, that a tournament has been arranged. Organized only recently, at the close of the football season, it has spread rapidly through the student-body and when the tournament opens in Houston next September it is expected that some time will be required to eliminate the weaker players in trial contests and get to the real expert players in the finals. The University of Texas is said to be the only college or university in the country where horseshoe pitching has been introduced as a regular sport in intramural sports.

BAPTISED WITH JORDAN WATER

Water brought to Texas from the River Jordan by A. E. Brady of Cameron was used recently when sixteen babies were baptised at the Methodist church in that city. Mr. Brady had been engaged abroad in Y. M. C. A. work and when he returned from Palestine included a bottle of Jordan River water among the souvenirs he brought home with him.

LADY LORRAINE IN PAGEANT

Lady Lorraine is to be represented in the pageant at San Angelo during the convention in May of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in the person of Miss Adine Howell of Lorraine, which is an enterprising and progressive town in Mitchell county. From present indications there will be upwards of 100 beautiful young ladies, representing as many West Texas towns and cities, participating in the pageant.

STREET MEETINGS FEATURE REVIVAL

Street meetings featured revival services that were conducted in Electra in April under auspices of the First Methodist church of that city. Not content with reaching those who came to his church to hear him, the Rev. Mark N. Terrell started out to reach those who would not come to church and preached during the day on busy street corners. His efforts were rewarded by large crowds of listeners.

GOVERNORS VISIT TEXAS.

Three governors of sister states were visitors in Texas during the latter part of April. Governor Trinkle of Virginia was in Houston April 21 to attend the celebration on the San Jacinto battlefield on the 87th anniversary of the battle which gained Texas independence from Mexico. Governor Parker of Louisiana visited North Texas and Governor Hyde of Missouri visited the Texas plains country on trade trips.

BUILDING BOOM IN TEXAS.

Along with the announcement that Texas now has a population close to five million, come reports from all sections of the state that building activities are unusually brisk. Some places report a scarcity of homes and many new dwelling houses being constructed; others tell of contracts for new business structures. The reports are not confined to any section; they come from every section and indicate moderate prosperity throughout the state.

ORGANIZING RIFLE CLUBS

Attracted by the government offer of the loan of guns and gift of ammunition, local rifle clubs are being organized all over Texas. Major Charles M. Crawford, assistant adjutant general and secretary of the Texas Rifle Association, reports 26 clubs organized and 21 in process of formation with more than a score of others just making inquiries with intent to organize. The state rifle meet will be held in Austin during the summer and the best marksmen from each club in the association are expected to compete.

BULLDOG SAVES MASTER

There is one man in Beaumont who appreciates his bulldog, which is destined to have the best of care for the rest of its life. A. C. Colley, residing in the suburbs of Beaumont, recently was attacked by an infuriated bull, had been knocked to the ground and was about to be gored when his bulldog, known as "Nig," came to his rescue and, fastening his teeth into the nose of the animal, distracted its attention until Colley could be dragged to safety. After the bull had been clubbed into submission considerable force was necessary to release its nose from the dog's jaws.

JUROR GETS LOST

During a recent murder trial in Austin one of the jurors became separated from his companions for nearly a half hour, resulting in a legal wrangle until the court ordered that the trial be resumed. It appears that when the sheriff took the jury to dinner he overlooked a jurymen and left him locked in the jury room. He climbed down a fire escape and went to the restaurant where the jury usually dined, but failed to find his companions there and wandered about like a lost child until finally they found him. Then there was rejoicing among the jurors, but consternation among the lawyers.

RIFLE CLUBS TO COMPETE

The Longhorn Rifle Club of men and the Girls' Rifle Club of the University of Texas at Austin, have arranged a competitive shoot, which is to be held on the Camp Mabry rifle range early in May. The Longhorns are headed by Harold H. Welborn of Henderson, president of the Men's Rifle Club. The Girls' Rifle Club was organized only a few months ago and has been coached by Mrs. Grace McClellan of Austin, said to be the champion pistol shot of Texas. The University of Texas is said to be the first college in the southwest to make rifle shooting a regular sport for girls and some of them have made such good records that they are expected to prove strong contenders against the men for honors on the rifle range.

WELCOME FOR OWSLEY

Alvin M. Owsley of Texas, national commander of the American Legion, is expected to visit a number of posts in the Panhandle and other parts of West Texas early in May, and elaborate preparations are being made by the Hanson Post at Amarillo for his entertainment. Colonel Owsley has had hearty welcomes in other states and everywhere his eloquence has given force to his words, and his tour in West Texas is expected to be a regular triumphal march.

COUNTY FREE LIBRARIES

County free libraries, similar to free city libraries and free public schools, is the hope of Miss Elizabeth H. West, Texas state librarian and president of the Southwestern Library Association, as declared by her in a recent address. She said that the elevation of educational standards includes provision for adequate library service, equally adapted and equally accessible to the poorest, most ignorant farm tenant and to the richest and most scholarly.

PUBLIC LIBRARY AT SWEETWATER

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Wright of Sweetwater have offered a library building and equipment, to the people of Sweetwater who are now raising a fund with which to buy books. Civic clubs and the Chamber of Commerce are co-operating and numerous benefits are being conducted with the result that the fund is gradually accumulating and it is hoped will be sufficiently large very soon to buy enough books to open the library.

HIGHWAYS IN THE MOUNTAINS

Brewster county, which became the largest county in Texas when a portion of Pecos county was taken to form Terrell county, wants highways to connect Alpine, the county seat, with adjacent county seats and proposes to start its highway building program right away. Bonds to the amount of $300,000 were voted last September and have just been sold. Because of the splendid natural road foundations it will be possible to construct roads in Brewster county, it is claimed, at much less cost than in the populous black land districts of Texas.

SCOUTS BUILDING DUGOUTS

The Boy Scouts of Alpine have planned a novel summer outing which is to be held in a canyon of the mountains not far from their home. They propose to live in dugouts and enjoy the simple life to the utmost, and the dugouts they will occupy are now being constructed. While they will have some comforts which the original scouts did not enjoy, they expect to get fairly close to the primitive and learn how to make the most of the opportunities provided by nature.

MARKERS FOR TOURISTS

Various state highways are under construction in Texas, some of them extending east and west and others north and south. They are being built in sections and often it is difficult to find the way between one section that has been completed and another that is just being started. For the benefit of tourists, therefore, markers have been placed or are being placed along these highways so as to guide the way of tourists. Each highway has a different mark and if tourists will watch for them it is not a difficult matter to keep in the right road. Markers have been placed along roads that temporarily detour, for it is there the stranger will more easily get lost.

SNAKES AND HAIR ROPES

There has long been a belief in Texas that a snake will not crawl over a hair rope, and it has been said that cowboys would lie down on the prairie for a night's rest feeling perfectly safe if a hair rope was placed on the ground in a circle about the bed. But now comes Martin S. Kohler of the trans-Pecos country and says there is nothing in the belief; that a snake would just as readily crawl over a hair rope as it would crawl into its hole, and that a circle of hair rope about a bed is nothing but a fetish. He contends that if a snake has a grudge against the sleeper the hair rope will not keep it away, but he adds: "There is no danger from snakes if a person does not annoy them in some manner or step on them."

TEXAS GAINING IN POPULATION

Something more than a decade ago John Henry Kirby, the Houston lumberman, organized the Texas 5,000,000 club. Its purpose was to work for 5,000,000 population in Texas. At that time the state had less than 4,000,000 population, but homeseekers were flocking into the state and there was hope that the club's purpose would be fulfilled. The war came on and there were other interruptions and the club became a memory, but recently Texas has increased considerably in population and the Federal census bureau estimate of the state's population about the first of this year was 4,939,630. It was forecast by census officials that Texas would pass the 5,000,000-mark before the end of this year.

ANDERSON COUNTY PAVED HIGHWAY.

Anderson county is to have a paved highway extending north and south across the county and to be a part of the Red River-to-the-Gulf Highway. The cost to the county will be $1,500,000; to raise this amount bonds have been voted, and in addition to this amount there will be state and federal aid money to complete the project.

PLAINS TRACK MEET

West Texas colleges and schools were represented in large number in the Plains intercollegiate track and field meet that was held on April 28 on the athletic field of the West Texas state normal college at Canyon City. It was an event that aroused interest in every part of the Plains and Panhandle country of Texas and attracted the best athletics of those sections of West Texas.

MINISTER SEEKING EXPERIENCE.

Wishing to learn about men, to get experience in dealing with men and how to rub elbows with humanity in a rough fashion, the Rev. H. H. Umstead, English born and a graduate of the Missouri Wesleyan University, has joined the United States army as a private and is now serving in the Seventh Cavalry, stationed at Fort Bliss, in far West Texas. When he has served his three-year enlistment he expects to return to the ministry. He hopes that when he returns to the ministry he will be a better pastor by reason of his service in the army.

BIRDS TO HAVE REFUGE

Green Island, one of the Laguna Madre group of the South Texas coast, has been leased from the state of Texas by the Audubon Society for a bird refuge, where every bird that wishes to go there may have protection and care. A keeper is to be located on the island, a house having been constructed there in which he will live, and he will have the birds as his special charge. A greater variety of birds is said to be found along the Texas coast than anywhere else in the world.

STUDENTS STILL PITCHING HORSESHOES.

The footwear of Old Dobbin continues to gain in popularity. From all parts of the state come reports of students pitching horseshoes. It is an old sport, once was very popular, that went into the discard and now is being revived. The pitching distance is 40 feet for the men and boys and 30 feet for the girls. A game is 50 points. While horseshoes that have seen actual service are being generally used, some sporting goods houses, in order to insure a standard size and weight, are carrying horseshoe stocks, the shoe they handle being a little heavier, a little wider and not quite so thick as Old Dobbin's.

COTTON MILLS IN TEXAS.

Cotton mills are slowly but surely finding locations in Texas. Only a few years ago they were confined to the New England states, except for a few experiments scattered over the country. Then they obtained a foothold in the Carolinas and in Georgia and now they have come to Texas. One organization in the state is sending out an industrial engineer to tell communities how to establish textile industries. New England mill owners are planning to visit the state to study conditions in Texas with a view to moving their plants here. The abundance of natural gas is said to be an incentive and it may be only a few years until Texas, and especially North Texas, will have spindles humming in a hundred towns.

SIGNAL HONORS FOR TEXAS SOLDIERS.

Texas was recognized for the second time with a Congressional Medal of Honor and the Distinguished Service Cross bestowed for heroism during the World War, when citations were announced making the awards to Daniel R. Edwards of Bruceville, McLennan county, who served throughout the World War as a first-class private in Company C, Third Machine Gun Battalion, a part of the First Division. Edwards is awarded recognition for his actions near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918, where he killed four and captured four men, and was afterwards wounded by a high explosive enemy shell.

The other award was in favor of David B. Berkeley of San Antonio, who served with the 365th Infantry, of the Eighty-ninth Division, and lost his life at Pouilly, France, while attempting to cross a stream for valuable information he had been sent to obtain.

TEXAS HAY FEVER BODY ORGANIZED.

The Texas Hay Fever Prevention Association has been organized at Austin. Dr. H. W. Harper was elected president. Purpose of the organization was declared to be the collection and dissemination of knowledge concerning methods of prevention, control and cure of the disorder.

HOUSE PAYS TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF SAM HOUSTON.

The House of Representatives paid a silent tribute to the memory of General Sam Houston, April 23, commemorating San Jacinto Day, by placing floral decorations about the life-size painting of the General, which hangs in the corridor of the State Capitol.

VETERANS' GRAVES TO BE DECORATED.

Graves of 300 war veterans, in West Hill Cemetery, at Sherman, will be decorated Memorial Day, May 30, by the American Legion post of that city. Concrete crosses, similar to those in French war cemeteries, is part of the scheme of decoration.

WOMEN GET RECOGNITION.

The senior law class at the University of Texas has elected Miss Gladys Rowntree the class president. She is the first woman ever accorded that honor. Another woman to be honored is Miss Susette Meyer of Bowie, who has been elected secretary-treasurer of the student organization of the law school, and Miss Sue Falvey, a member of the senior law class, has been elected to membership in the Curtin club.

TWO COUNTIES WOULD IMPROVE KING OF TRAILS GAP.

The only gap in the King of Trails and Meridian Highway between Waco and San Antonio is a strip 2.3 miles long in Falls county that serves as a wedge dividing Bell and McLennan counties. The latter counties are considering a plan to have this territory ceded to them by Falls county, and improve the strip to correspond with the high-grade road that prevails on both sides.

COTTON MILLS IN TEXAS

pillow cases. It employs 240 men and has a weekly pay roll of $5,000.

The Itasca Cotton Mills of Itasca use 75 bales weekly of bollies to good middling and manufacture duck sheetings, drills and osnaburgs. One hundred and fifty men are employed and the weekly pay roll is $1,750.

The Dallas Cotton Mills of Dallas use 120 bales weekly of bollies to good middling and make domestic duck; 210 men are employed and the weekly pay roll is $3,500.

The Cuero Cotton Mills of Cuero use 90 bales of bollies to middling and make heavy and light duck; 160 men are employed and the weekly pay roll is $2,100.

The Gonzales Cotton Mill of Gonzales uses 70 bales of bollies to strict middling and makes sheetings, ducks and denims. One hundred and twenty-five men are employed and the weekly pay roll is $1,600.

The Denison Cotton Mill Co. of Denison uses 140 bales weekly of strict good ordinary to strict middling and makes ducks; 275 are employed and the weekly pay roll is $3,600.

The Miller Cotton Mills of Waco use weekly 107 bales of bollies to strict low middling and make white and colored ducks which are manufactured into different lines of goods; 200 men are employed and the pay roll is $3,400 weekly.

The Waco Twine Mills of Waco use weekly 50 bales of bollies to strict middling and make twine. Sixty-five men are employed and the pay roll per week is $800.

In using a mere fraction of the Texas cotton crop—just a drop in the bucket—these sixteen mills pay out for labor more than two million dollars per year. What then would it mean to use as much as fifty per cent of the raw cotton material at home? There can be but one answer: The state's prosperity would materially increase. Many thousands of persons would be able to find steady employment as a consequence and new homes would spring up on every side.

This proposition of building cotton mills in Texas and lifting the economic condition of the state to a higher and more dependable basis is not an idle dream. It is something practical; it has been demonstrated already on a small scale, and it should appeal to the earnest consideration of all business men and all leaders of every community.

TARRANT COUNTY BUILDS 225 MILES HIGHWAY

Tarrant county's bond issue road building program is nearing completion.

Out of $3,450,000 voted in July, 1919, which was augmented by $625,000 State and Federal aid, making a total of $4,075,000, all has been spent with the exception of $525,000.

A total of 225 miles of highways have been completed. There still remains several routes, mostly gravel roads, yet to be completed.

DOG CATCHER NOT NEEDED.

The city of Dallas has reached that point where a dog catcher is not needed. It appears the official dog catcher in that city has been so energetic and successful in his capture of dogs that he has worked himself out of a job. There are no more dogs for the time being and so he will put his wagon in the barn, coil his rope and go fishing until the dogs have had a chance to multiply.

All Brownwood and Brown county celebrated the retention of the United States Pecan Experiment Station at Brownwood, which would have been moved to Georgia last October but for the timely work done by the Texas Pecan Growers' Association, Chamber of Commerce of this section and other agencies. Mr. A. I. Fabis, in charge of the station, accepted a grant of 100 acres of native pecan grove which the city of Brownwood tendered to the experiment station with the hope of future development into a comprehensive research laboratory which will deal with all pecan problems provided the state appropriates the necessary funds.

A Little Fun

Jokes to Make You Laugh

HELP!

A Florida paper says the moonlight in that State is so bright that the owls are dying of insomnia.

CAN YOU BEET IT?

This thrilling love letter was found in a basket of Florida beans:
"Dearest Sweet Pea—Do you carrot all for me? My heart beets for you, with your radish hair and your turnip nose, you are the apple of my eye. Give me a date. If we cantelope, lettuce marry, anyway. I know we would be a happy pear."
"LIMA BEAN."

WHY WORRY?

Aby was called by his banker who informed him that his account was overdrawn three hundred dollars.
Says Abe to the banker—"And how much did I have thirty days ago?"
The banker after looking up records replied that he had over six hundred dollars to his credit at that time.
"Well," replied Aby, "I didn't call you up, did I?"

There was a little man
And he had a little jug
And he filled it full of raisins, high,
high, high,
And he said to all his friends:
"When this simple process ends,
I shall be the proud possessor of some rye, rye, rye."
So he left it for a week,
And when next he took a peek
The contents rose and hit him in the eye, eye, eye.
Then he promptly took to bed
With a bandage on his head,
And now he's quite contented to be dry,
dry, dry.

HIS WORRY

The high-powered car was speeding toward a railroad crossing when a train rounded a bend a mile away. The two men in the front seat, both racing fiends, began an argument as to whether or not they could beat the train to the crossing. The driver insisted he could easily make it; his companion, that the train would beat by several minutes. The argument and the speed increased, and the train rolled swiftly on. Finally, a passenger in the rear seat could stand it no longer. Frantically clutching a side of the car, he shouted:
"I don't give a damn who wins this race, but I hope it ain't a tie."

UNCLE SI

Uncle Si Perkins placed his folded newspaper on top of the vinegar barrel, removed his spectacles, and produced a twist of natural leaf.

"Been readin' a piece," said he, "about the duty o' folks to respect the Courts. It reminds me right sharp of a lot o' talk that was goin' on durin' the war about privates respectin' their officers. As I remember it, the wa'n't no chance o' lickin' the Germans if privates didn't learn to salute right an' feel plum' stuffed with respect when an officer went by."

"It kind o' tickled me. You can't make nobody respect nothin' unless he feels that way. An' if a officer is deservin' o' respect, he's a-goin' to git it without askin' fo' it."

"Men respects the hind end of a mule an' a bee, an' the front end of a Billy goat, because these things is respectable. An' the ain't no kind o' law or propaganda can make men respect a worm, because a worm ain't respectable, an' ever'body what's got any sense knows it."

"Folks is a-goin' to respect the Courts as long as the Courts is respectable, an' not a danged bit longer. Folks in this day is got too much sense to believe in fairy tales. They want to be showed. An' the won't never come a time, son, when folks like us will respect a Court what acts crooked or hypocritical or foolish."

BUT DID HE?

Pat was leaving Liverpool for New York. When the ship started Pat saw a diver going down into the sea and when the ship arrived at New York. Pat saw a diver coming up and said:
"Wasn't I a fool to pay my passage?"
This fellow started when I did and is here as soon as me."

"NEBER RIDE ON DEM THINGS"

"No, sah, ah doesn't neber ride on dem things," said an old colored woman, looking in on the merry-go-round. "Why, de other day I seen dat Rastus Johnson git on an' ride as much as a dollah's worth and git off at the very same place he go on at, an' I sez to him, 'Rastus, I sez, 'yo' spent yo' money, but whar yo' been?'"

CHANGED HER NAME

A negro mammy came into the office of the estate for which she worked, to receive her regular wages. As she could not write, she always made her mark on the receipt—the usual X. But on this occasion she made a circle.
"What's the matter, Linda?" the man in charge asked. "Why don't you make a cross as usual?"
"Why," Linda explained earnestly, "Ise done got married yistidy an' changed mah name."

THE NEW POOR

E. Berry Wall, the well known New Yorker, was talking in Paris about the new poor.
"There's many a Frenchman of fine stock," he said, "who is as shabby today as he was magnificent before the war. A marquis moaned the other evening in my presence:
"When prices come down I'll really have to buy myself a new pair of shoes. These I'm wearing are positively falling off my feet."
"Is it as bad as that, marquis?" I said.

"Yes," said the marquis, turning his foot about. "Yes, my boy, these soles are so thin that when I step on a copper coin I can tell whether it's heads or tails."

A NEW DISEASE

Passing through Philadelphia the other day, I stopped to watch a girl going through her gymnastic exercises for the amusement of some little children with whom she was playing. Presently a countryman, who was, I should judge, on his first visit to a large town, came up, and after gazing compassionately at her for some time, asked a little boy if the girl had fits.

"No," grinned the boy, "them's gymnastics."

"Ah! How very sad," said the old man. "How long 'as she had em?"

NOT WORTH THE DIFFERENCE

Not long ago the owner of a plantation in Alabama was called to his back door to find there a young negro named Jim, one of the tenants.

"Cun'l Bob," said Jim, "de nex' time you go to town, I wisht you'd git me a marriage license. Ise wants to marry Liza."

Colonel Bob promised to do so, after receiving $2 from Jim, the price of the license.

Jim's license was sent to him, and two weeks later Colonel Bob was again called to the door to see Jim.

"Cun'l Bob," said Jim, "Ise decided I wants to marry Begonia instid of Liza. Can't you scratch out Liza's name on de license an' write in Begonia's?"

Colonel Bob informed Jim that this could not be done, and that he would have to secure a new license at the price of another $2. Jim, very much disappointed, went away; and some time later the Colonel chanced upon him in the field. "Well, Jim," said he, "are you married yet?"

"Yes, sah, Cun'l Bob," Jim replied, "me and Liza got married las' night."

MANY SCHOOLS AT RALLY.

Hill county held a school rally recently when sixteen schools of the county were represented at a gathering in Itasca. A set of books valued at $65 was given to the school having the largest percentage of its enrollment present and was won by the Eureka school. Milford High won the baseball game from Itasca High — of course, there had to be a ball game. The parade of schools was about one-half mile long and was reviewed by between 3,500 and 4,000 spectators.

AUTO HINTS

When parts are to be bolted together, do not try to make the nut pull the bolt through if the latter sticks. Use a hammer to drive the bolt into place, otherwise the threads may be ruined.

After washing the car, dry the body immediately with a clean chamois, but never use the same sponge or chamois that has been used at any time on the running gear.

Overheating of an engine is prevented by keeping the radiator filled with clean water, having the fan belt properly adjusted and avoiding leaky connections.

The power of a car is cut down considerably by too heavy an oil in the engine and too heavy a grease in the gear case. Lubricants that are too thick will not flow at all in cold weather and the gears and bearings will run dry.

When forced to come to a stop in heavy traffic, release the brakes. Thus, if your car is struck from behind, only its weight offers resistance to moving ahead.

Approximately 3,000 automobiles were struck by trains at grade crossings during 1922, killing some 2,000 persons and disfiguring about 3,000 others. The driver of each of these cars figured he could beat the engine to the crossing.

It is well to remember that oil is cheaper than the services of a mechanic. Use plenty of the former and you will not find it necessary to take your car to the service station very often to have motor troubles adjusted. Most motor troubles are due to using the wrong grade of oil or running too far without draining out the old oil and refilling the crank case with fresh oil.

LOSS OF CATTLE BY DIPPING IS SMALL.

Opponents of tick eradication in Texas who declare in some of their arguments that tick eradication results in cattle losses, have been questioned by statistics received from the Bureau of Animal Industry at Washington, D. C. The statistics include all individual reports sent in by field employees and shows that an average of less than four head of cattle are lost each year for each 1,000,000 head of cattle dipped. Covering the calendar year of 1922, it is brought out that there were 72,129,958 dippings in the United States and that 282 head of cattle died as the result of being dipped, or as result of injuries received while passing through the dipping vats. From month to month the cattle-dipping records of Texas for 1922 are as follows: January, 374,669; February, 378,537; March, 890,856; April, 8,864,108; May, 6,298,964; June, 6,523,344; July, 6,783,503; August, 7,013,372; September, 6,132,743; October, 6,125,962; November, 4,978,516; December, 2,068,586.

YOUR HOMETOWN

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of a series of talks on "Your Home Town." Other talks will follow. There will be food for thought and profit to you if you read carefully each one of these talks. The publisher of this newspaper is not finding any fault with his home town, but wants it to progress and set a pace that will be the envy of all towns in Texas—now the biggest and greatest and potentially the richest state in the Union.

Are you proud of your home town? Is it all you hope it might be? If it isn't perhaps it is due in part to you. Maybe you are not a good neighbor and are out of harmony with every one else in your town.

Remember, your home town is made up of the farmers and their families in the surrounding community, the merchants, bankers, manufacturers, laborers, and all professional men and their families. Each one of you is dependent upon the other. By co-operating in every movement for the betterment of your home town it will grow and prosper and become a better place in which to live.

The greatest bulwark to the progress of any town is not the town and its location—it is the kind of folks that live in the town. If they are chasing the distant rainbow's end, longing to live in a town with clean and good streets, dirt and trash will accumulate in their home town and its streets grow up in weeds. Your home town may never make a city, but it lies within you and your neighbors to make it a clean town of happy, contented and prosperous families.

The pot of gold lies not at the rainbow's end—it is in your home town. It is to be found in its churches, good schools, beautiful homes, nice parks, well kept streets and fine county roads. These make for a common interest—a community spirit.

It is the community spirit of a town that advertises it to the world at large. A community spirit is not possible where folks aren't neighborly. Neighborliness brings happiness and contentment. It brings harmony among people. It drives out hate and disinterestedness, which breed only unhappiness and discontent. Be a neighbor and your neighbor will be one, too.

You can't have a prosperous home town and community if there is a flow of money and interest away from your town to some other town. Make it your motto to produce the best you can and always give your home town merchant a chance to supply your wants. He may not have it, but he can get it.

If all the people in a town would thus feel their interdependence and always work in a thoroughly co-operative spirit there would be more prosperity and happiness in your home town, there would be better homes, stores, schools, churches, newspapers, entertainments, streets, roads, parks, and better men and women in your community. (To Be Continued.)

JOHNSON COUNTY SOW BREAKS ALL RECORDS.

It is said that a Johnson county sow has broken all known records as a prolific mother of the Duroc-Jersey gilt breed. Her name is Lady E 2d, No. 1217726, and she farrowed twenty pigs on April 6 at the hog farm of Cahill & Smith at Lillian. This gilt was bought from Alexander, Michio & Jones of Childress and was bred to Cahill's P. Sensation. The sire was bred and raised by Cahill & Smith. This is thought to be a world's record for a Duroc-Jersey gilt, the next highest number, so far as can be determined, being nineteen. This gilt is one of three sows to farrow fifty pigs for the same firm this year.

HOUSE PASSES AUTO INTOXICATION BILL.

For Our Boys and Girls

By AUNT MARY.

TO OUR MOTHERS.

To our mother the greatest woman in the world. The love that will shield us and protect us from the cradle to the grave. To the one who will hold out loving arms of protection when all others cry out against us. To her who is happy when we are happy and sorrowful when we are sad. To this sacred unselfish soul we respectfully dedicate this page which represents our humble efforts to repay our Greatest Friend—Our Mother.

Dedicated in the month of May of 1923 which embraces "Mothers Day" that is revered and respected by all.

The bravest battle that ever was fought, Shall I tell you where and when? On the maps of the world you will find it not—'Tis fought by mother of men.

Nay, not with cannon or battle shot, With sword or noble pen, Nay; not with eloquent words or thought From mouths of wonderful men.

But deep in the walled-up woman's heart— Of woman that would not yield, But bravely, silently bore her part— Lo, there is that battlefield.

No marshaling troop, no bivouac song, No banner to gleam and wave; But, oh, their battles, how they last From boyhood to the grave.

Yet faithful still as a bridge of stars, She fights in her walled-up town— Fights on and on in endless wars, Then, silent, unseen, goes down.

Oh, ye with banners and battle shot, And soldiers to shout and praise, I tell you the kindest victories fought Were fought in those silent ways.

Oh, spotless woman in a world of shame; With splendid and silent scorn Go back to God as white as you came— The kindest warrior born.

—Joaquin Miller.

Now, my dear little readers, I hope you have done something for your mother this month on Mother's day. But you and I will go further and make every day our Mother's day. Making her happy the year 'round by kindly deeds and thoughts.

AUNT MARY.

A LETTER TO ALL GOOD BOYS AND GIRLS.

My Dear Children: If I could only tell you how happy I am, that I am going to be able to visit with you each month on this page. Tho' I have never seen any of you, yet I love you as I love all boys and girls, and I hope you will learn to know me and to love me, too. Because we are going to have this page all to ourselves. Yes, it is just as much your page as mine, in fact, more.

I have a lot of surprises for you, too. Do you like to make money all your own? Well, I am going to give you many useful hints.

Little sister is going to have her "Cook Book" just like mother's. You will be surprised how many nice things you can make as easily. Then in no time you can be a wonderful cook.

The boys are going to have a section so they can learn how to build radios at home and anything else they want.

Each month I am going to tell you an animal story and a really true story about great men and women who have made their names famous to us by brave deeds and acts.

Love to all, (Signed) AUNT MARY. Box 544, Fort Worth, Texas.

GREAT MEN AND WOMEN.

Mary, the Mother of Washington. As befitting the occasion of the celebration of "Mother's Day" by the dedication of this page to "Our Mothers," we can not but help turning our thoughts to the Mother of "The Father of Our Country."

Mary Ball, who was George Washington's mother, was the woman to whom we must look as the "Woman of Great Influence on Our Nation." Though not directly, yet indirectly, she influenced American history, since Washington all through his life followed her examples and teachings.

Very little is known of her early life. That she came from a poor, unknown family, is disputed by the few fragments of letters and church records of that day. Mary Ball was the youngest child of Colonel Joseph Ball by his second marriage and it is thought she had a "Sister Susie." By a first marriage he had two children, Joseph and Hannah.

She was known as the "Belle of Northern Neck," the section where her home was located; and "The Rose of Epping Forest," the name of the old homestead where she was born.

Her father died when she was a very young child. Her mother remained a widow until her death, when Mary was about twenty-two years old. She then went to live with her half-brother, Joseph, in England. Here she met and married Augustine Washington, a wealthy widower, thirty-four years old. He had two sons by a former marriage, between which grew a close companionship to their step-mother.

George was the oldest son of Augustine and Mary Washington. He had two brothers and two sisters, one of whom died in infancy.

At the untimely death of Augustine, the husband of Mary, when she was but thirty-seven years of age, she became the manager of the household, managing the large population and the rearing and education of her fatherless children. She was strict and stern in her discipline, a thrifty housewife and an excellent manager. Her children loved and respected her and knew better than to cross her will or question her judgment.

Lawrence Washington, her oldest step-son, who had inherited a larger fortune than the other children, was made the head of the family at his father's death. He was her adviser and her children looked up to him as such. He especially influenced the life of George between whom there was a close friendship. When George was about sixteen years of age he persuaded his mother to let him join the navy. A mid-shipman's warrant was obtained through his half-brother's influence. On the eve of his departure a letter from his mother's brother in England made her change her mind and she persuaded him not to go. After this incident she never opposed his plans, though through life he always consulted with her on any great problem.

Some people have given credit to the story that she remained a "Tory" during the Revolution. But fragments of letters and records show that she was thoroughly in sympathy with the "Cause" and that from her home in "Fredericksburg" (where she moved from "Pine Grove" at the beginning of the war), went many necessities for the soldiers. She did not see her son George (her favorite) for seven years during this period. Her heartaches must have been many, but she disdained the very thought of displayed emotion.

After the war on the afternoon of November 11, 1781, Washington visited his mother. The meeting was sweet and simple even after so long an absence.

Her only public appearance as the hero's mother was at the Peace Ball in Fredericksburg during his visit there. She was hailed as a queen, and it is said that it was the "proudest moment of her life."

Lafayette paid his respects to the widowed mother of his brother-in-arms in 1784. After his visit he said, "I have seen the only Roman matron living at this day."

The last time Washington saw his mother was on April 14, 1789; the visit was short, as that very morning he had received official notice of his election to the Presidency of the United States and must leave for New York on the morrow. He could see that she was failing fast and dreaded to leave her. He always provided substantial means for her welfare.

On August 25, 1789, she died, surrounded by all her children except her favorite son, George, who did not receive the message until one week later because of the slow method of travel.

She was mourned by the nation. A near neighbor wrote: "There is no fame in the world more pure than that of the mother of Washington, and no woman since the mother of Christ had left a better claim on the affectionate reverence of mankind."

LITTLE GIRL'S COOK BOOK.

Did you ever hear this jingly little rhyme?

"Can she make a cherry pie, Billie Boy, Billie Boy?"

Can she make a cherry pie, Charming Billy?

She can make a cherry pie, quick as a cat can wink its eye,

But she's a young thing and cannot leave her mother."

Funny isn't it? I used to say that over and over again as a "kid" just for fun. But, honestly, you can really do that if you only try—make a cherry pie, I mean. But we won't start anything so hard at first. So let's try and make some candy that's good and not too expensive.

Caramels.

Take 2 cups of sugar, 1 1/2 cups of syrup, 1/2 cup of milk and 1/4 cup of butter, boil these together until they form a ball when dropped in cold water. Then take off of the stove and add one teaspoon of vanilla and nuts or raisins, if you have them. Pour into pan you have greased real well and let cool.

This candy is delicious. Next month I will give you a recipe for cookies.

550 SPECIES OF BIRDS WINTER HERE.

In Texas the feathered flock of the United States finds its winter playground, at least the greater part of the birds of the country come to this state to escape frigid temperatures, says H. B. Parks of A. & M. College, an authority on birds.

"Almost five hundred and fifty species of birds are resident, or transient in Texas during the winter season.

"In their migrations many cover a tremendous mileage. There is the Arctic Tern, for instance, a member of the gull family. It breeds at the North Pole and spends its winter at the South Pole, meaning a round trip each year of 22,000 miles.

"Man has learned much concerning the fowls of the air, yet he has not discovered the big secret of their migration."

HOME PROBLEMS

GOOD WATER FOR FARM AND SMALL TOWN HOMES

Last month I completed the description of the shallow well. This month I will take up the description of the deep and artesian water and driven wells.

"Deep wells" differ from shallow wells in that the bore of the well penetrates through the first water-bearing layer, through the hardpan or rock lying under it and draws water from some water-bearing layer beneath. If the water flows from such a well it is called "artesian." If it is pumped it is spoken of as a deep well. The water does not come from rain falling on the ground as does the shallow well. It usually comes from a long distance. Sometimes hundreds of miles. For this reason the water from a deep well in freestone soil is usually well filtered. It is, however, likely to contain mineral substances and have an objectionable taste. In limestone rocks, however, the water may be heavily polluted, as it can flow for miles through the cracks without any purification.

The deep well is usually lined with an iron or steel casing which must reach the hardpan or rock and extend for some distance into it, thus forming a joint. One must see that the driller also screws up tight the joints of the pipe, that there are no holes in it and that the platform is well braced. If this is done pollution will rarely take place. It is an excellent idea to raise the surface of the ground around the well and cover immediately the surface about the top with an air-tight covering. When the pump is sunk into a pump pit to prevent freezing, the pit should be covered with an air-tight platform and kept free from water. The pipe should be surrounded with cement to keep water from working down along the pipe. It also helps to prevent freezing.

"Driven wells" are in some localities the most satisfactory and economical form of well. A pipe provided with a pointed strainer is driven into the ground until the water-bearing layer is reached. As the water must be near the surface for such a well to be practicable it must be removed as far as possible from any source that might cause pollution.

The general rules of a shallow well should be followed. A cement platform is highly recommended. For priming a well covered bucket of clean water should be kept at the well.

Whenever possible the watering trough should be located at some distance from the well and the water should be piped to it.

All wells must be constructed with forethought and care. Common "horse sense" is valuable in anything we individuals undertake. This is especially true of well locations.

Next month will be the end of this series on "Good Water." If you have any individual problems that I have not covered in these series write me a letter fully outlining the locations and your difficulties, enclose a self-addressed envelope and I will try to help you. Please avoid asking questions covered in these articles.

LATE FASHIONS.

(Easily Made at Home)

This is one of the latest designs in a lady's blouse. It is easily made and can be made up in a variety of colors. However, a becoming color made up with paisley silk is best. For size 36 it requires 2 1/4 yards 40-inch material, with 5/8 yard 36-inch paisley silk. The blouse is gathered at lower edge to a straight band, which terminates into a sash at the left side.

Little girl's dress, made up in cretine, requires 1 1/4 yards 36-inch material and 1 1/4 yard ribbon to trim. It is sleeveless and easy to slip on. For a play dress it is unequalled. Do not choose any real "flashy" colors for a child.

Despite the early appearance of bright colors, we find many somber hues in summer frocks.

"King Tut" still seems to dictate the mode of dress to a great extent.

QUESTION BOX

Question: Which is the healthiest for home, well water or spring water?—R. S. Henderson, Texas.

Answer: If at the end of my series on "Good Water for the Farm and Small Town Homes" you cannot definitely decide the answer, re-state your question in a letter to me, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope giving full details of your locality and what you are now using and I will try to help you.

Ques.: On what side of the house should Dahlias be planted?—L. M. Keller, Texas.

Ans.: Dahlias like the morning sun and I have had the best success with them on the east side of the house.

Ques.: How should pongee goods be ironed?

Ans.: It should not be ironed until thoroughly dry. If ironed while damp it will spot and be stiff.

Ques.: Are turkeys hard to raise?

Ans.: As a rule turkeys are hard to raise. However, with careful tending after the first six weeks they are usually quite hardy. Give them plenty of range or they will not thrive. They are best raised in the country and allowed to run in the grain fields and they will eat all the waste grain that has fallen on the ground.

Note: I will welcome any questions pertaining to the home. Address Box 1012, Fort Worth, Texas. (Mrs.) Margaret Stute.

FOOD

ITS USE TO THE BODY AND PROPER PREPARATION—Continued

Last month we finished with the digestive system and how the food is digested in the body, and then the waste material eliminated. This was necessary in order that you could judge the kinds of foods that I am going to describe and their use.

For convenience we are going to classify all foods under five heads. Then it will be easier to describe them and their use and preparation.

A well-balanced diet should every day contain something from each of the five groups, unless there is some special condition or disease present in the individual, in which case a reputable doctor should be consulted and his advice followed. These articles are to be followed by and used in the average family. Just how much of a certain food is needed in an individual family will depend on several things. The age of the individuals, the kind of labor and exercise, the season, and financial circumstances will govern these things.

The five heads are as follows:

1. Fruits and vegetables. Without these there is danger that the diet may be lacking in mineral matter and other substances needed in the making of tissues and for keeping the body in health.

2. Milk, cheese, eggs, meat, fish, and dried legumes (peas, beans, etc.) Without these there is danger that the diet may be lacking in protein, an indispensable tissue builder.

3. Cereals (wheat, oats, rye, corn, barley, and rice) and their products. Without these the diet would contain practically no starch, the cheapest kind of body fuel.

4. Sugar, molasses, syrups, honey and other sweets. Without these the diet would be lacking in sugar, valued as body fuel and for its flavor.

5. Fats (butter, lard, meat fat, and olive, peanut cottonseed, and other fats and oils). Without these the diet might be lacking in fat, which has a high value as body fuel and gives an agreeable quality commonly called "richness."

In choosing our selection we must bear several things in mind. First, that in all groups there are high-priced and low-priced foods. The lower priced foods are often as nourishing as the more expensive. However, as a rule it takes more time and skill to prepare them than the others. They usually require longer cooking and more seasoning. Always avoid waste in any food. Select your entire menu with your eyes on your pocketbook as well as your stomach and usually both will be benefited.

(To be continued next month).

PRIZE LETTERS

Mrs. J. D. Vaughn, Tulia, Texas, is winner of the second prize letter. The prize is $2.00 in cash.

SECOND PRIZE LETTER

Dear Mrs. Stute:—

I am a reader of the Woman's Page and enjoy reading it very much, as there are always so many helpful things given.

One of the best things is the old-time tested recipes for cooking something we do not know how to cook. These tested recipes clipped from time to time will soon give a good scrap cookbook, and one the recipes can be relied upon as being good.

We readers are always given some suggestions of the latest fashions. I have found some very helpful hints in regard to making over some of my old clothing and the material best suited to combine.

I really don't have any suggestions to offer on the improvement of the "Woman's Page," but think your plan of giving every one an opportunity to ask for information they are in need of, is great. I am sure there are many of us housekeepers who have the same difficult daily problems, and this will be a wonderful help to all of us.

I hope all the readers have been getting as much benefit out of the "Woman's Page" as I have, and I am sure that there are some wonderful things in store for us this year.

Yours very truly,
Mrs. J. D. Vaughn,
Tulia, Texas.
Box 796.

Mrs. Vaughn's letter is very helpful to me in that it makes me feel that in my small way I am able to help my readers.

Now, folks, don't stop at this. Write me your suggestions at any time. I am anxious for them. Every word you send me shows me whether or not I am giving you what you want and what you need.

TESTED RECIPES

FRUIT COCKTAIL

1/2 cup sliced pineapple,
1/2 cup diced orange,
1/2 cup plumped seeded raisins,
1/2 cup pineapple juice,
Maraschino cherries.

Place alternately, in cocktail glasses, add pineapple juice, garnish with cherry and serve plain or with whipped cream. Some people like to mix the fruit all together, then put in the glasses and pour pineapple juice over it.

CHOCOLATE CREAMS

(Requested).

1/2 cup white syrup,
1 1/2 cups sugar,
1/2 cup hot water.

Boil the above ingredients without stirring until they spin a thread from a spoon. Remove from fire. When partially cooled beat until creamy. Have ready in a pan 1/2-pound chocolate that has been melted in a double boiler over a slow fire. Add no water to chocolate, as it makes it dull. When fondant is very creamy, form in balls or any shape desired, dip in chocolate and lay on waxed paper. A clean knitting needle is very good to dip them with. By rolling whole nuts or candied fruits in fondant before dipping one can make a variety.

PINOCHÉ

3 cups brown sugar,
1 cup milk,
1/2 cup butter,
1/2 cup broken walnut meats,
1/2 cup Sun-Maid raisins,
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cook sugar, milk and butter together until it forms a soft ball when tested in cold water. Remove from fire. Add nuts, raisins and vanilla. Beat until creamy. Put into buttered tins and when cold cut in squares.

Note: At any time my readers have a very favorite recipe that they are willing and glad to give to this column, I will be very happy to publish it. It will be called by your own name if you are willing and due credit given.

A NICE DESSERT.

One evening an unexpected guest came in just at dinner time. Having only a small box of strawberries, I sliced each berry several times and added chopped nuts and whipped cream.
